Hanoi's Expansionist Aim Hit By Phouma

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Premier Souvanna Phouma accused North Vietnam today of sending 12,000 more troops into Laos recently, supported by tanks, rockets and long-range guns, to further Hanoi's "expansionist and ideological" aims.

Speaking on the 20th anniversary of the Royal Lao army, Prince Souvanna said North Vietnamese forces had "captured for the Pathet Lao an area which unequivocally belongs to the neutralist forces."

Plain Of Jars Eyed
He presumably was referring to the Plain of Jars, which the neutralist faction he heads controlled in the early 1960s with Pathet Lao consent. After Souvanna became head of the government and the United States became his chief backer, the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao took over the strategic plain in northeast Laos. They lost it last September to a guerrilla army trained and supported by the United States, then recaptured it in the offensive they began last month.

Want Neutrality
Souvanna said his government had called on the governments which signed the 1962 Geneva agreement guaranteeing Lao neutrality to confer among themselves to find "a common and just solution to the Lao problem."

The Premier said his government had received the five-point Pathet Lao peace proposal "with the most attentive welcome, faithful as we are to the principles of a political settlement in justice and honor to our national dilemma."

No further North Vietnamese advance was reported in the area of Long Cheng, the headquarters 80 miles north of Vientiane of Gen. Vang Pao's guerrilla army. The North Vietnamese hit the base with about a dozen rockets Sunday, the third day they made such an attack, but no casualties or damage were reported.

U. S. Plane Downed
The U.S. Command in Saigon said a U.S. Air Force OV10 Bronco was shot down over the Plain of Jars Saturday, but the pilot was rescued unhurt. The command announced the loss of two more planes over the upper panhandle of Laos, but they apparently were operating against North Vietnamese forces on the Ho Chi Minh trail and not in support of Laotian government forces.

Informed sources in Vientiane said as many as 100 U.S. Central Intelligence agents are training Meo tribesmen in Laos and Thailand for Vang Pao's Army. The sources said the CIA agents are working under the cover of the U.S. Embassy and the U.S. Agency for International Development (AID).

Nixon Ponders Emergency Measures In Postal Strike

Mail As Usual Here; Injunction Possible

By The Associated Press
Postal workers in the Detroit area stayed off the job today while the federal government went ahead with U.S. District Court legal maneuvers to get the mails moving again.

Some 4,000 Detroit postal workers, representing members of seven postal unions, shouted "no, no" for almost two minutes Sunday when asked at a membership meeting if they wanted to go back to work.

Situation Eases
In Michigan outside the metropolitan Detroit area, the mail situation eased a bit in some communities. Striking letter carriers in Battle Creek, East Lansing and Ann Arbor voted Sunday to return to work. Workers in several other communities voted not to strike pending further negotiations.

To Seal Mailboxes
Detroit postmaster Edward L. Baker said Sunday he had ordered maintenance workers to seal the city's 3,200 mailboxes to prevent anyone from mailing further letters. He said the project would be a slow one because only a few maintenance workers were available for the job.

Ralph Freeman, chief judge of the U.S. District Court in Detroit signed a temporary restraining order against the striking Detroit area workers Saturday. It forbade the workers to strike for 10 days.

Back For Five Days
At Ann Arbor, postal workers voted to return to work for five days while negotiations contin-

Rep. Gerald Ford

House Leader Ford Rejects Use Of Troops

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — House Minority Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan advocated Saturday night the use of negotiation and legislation, rather than calling out federal troops, to settle the postal strike.

Speaking before the Richmond Public Forum, Ford rejected a suggestion from the audience that the Army be employed to move the mail. Instead, he recommended that Congress act to reform the postal system after the workers return to their jobs.

"I have the greatest respect for the Department of the Army and the men of the Army," said the Republican representative, "but I doubt that they are adequately trained for the task of handling the mail."

"I do think there is an absolute need to take the firmest kind of action ... I realize some suggestions have been made to settle the strike ... Dismiss the workers ... Remove the postal union's recognition ... Seek injunctions."

"But I would rather have the postal employees return to work and then have Congress take the necessary action for postal reform. That would be a better way to approach the problem."

Ford's comments came during a question-and-answer period that followed a formal speech in which he made a strong pitch for congressional approval of President Nixon's "New Federalism" legislative program.

Metropolitan Area Workers Staying Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will make a statement on nationwide television at 2 p.m. EST today on the postal work stoppage.

The White House, announcing Nixon's television appearance, gave no indication of what Nixon plans to say or what actions he may be taking.

By The Associated Press
Postal workers in some key cities remained on strike today, ignoring court orders and pleas of their union leaders, but in other areas they stayed on the job or returned to handle an increasing pile-up of mail.

President Nixon avoided acting during the weekend, but said he was prepared to take emergency action today to keep the mails moving if a majority of workers remained off the job.

Military May Move In
Plans were being prepared for using National Guard and regular Army units to supplement postal forces, but there was no indication on how soon a decision might be made on whether to use them.

In New York, where the strike started last week, a regional post office spokesman said "the work stoppage is still on." Only 14 of 208 clerks and one of 182 carriers showed up for the 6 a.m. shift at the main post office.

Chicago Carriers Out
Chicago carriers also remained out, but Postmaster Henry W. McGee said first-class mail, at least, would go through with or without them. He said supervisory personnel would sort and handle the first class mail, if necessary.

At Philadelphia, nearly half of the 450 postal clerks normally at work on the early shift went to work at the main post office and some carriers also reported. One official said "There are a lot of clerks and mail handlers back on the job."

Boston reported 98 per cent of its clerks on duty, but many of the larger post offices in Connecticut were idled. Detroit also was hard hit, with a mail embargo in eight southeastern Michigan counties.

Pickets Cut Forces
Picket lines cut the work forces at the main distributing point for Los Angeles and at the World Way postal station at Los Angeles International Airport.

James H. Rademacher, president of the AFL-CIO National Association of Letter Carriers, estimated that 70 per cent of the nation's mailmen were back at work in 6,400 of the 6,500 cities. But many key cities across the nation still would be without mail service, he said.

Appearing on the NBC-TV Today show, Rademacher said he hoped bargaining could begin today. Both government officials and key Congress members have said they would not act under pressure of a strike.

Demand Renewed
Rademacher renewed his demand for agreement within five days of the start of bargaining, however, and said: "If I have to call a national strike, 'I'm going to ask (AFL-CIO President) George Meany and all the unions in this country to pull out their men in support.'"

A Post Office Department spokesman said no employees were on strike in seven postal regions. He listed them as Atlanta, Ga.; Dallas, Tex.; Memphis, Tenn.; St. Louis, Mo.; Seattle, Wash.; Washington, D.C.; and Wichita, Kan.

Nixon-Congress Education Fund Replay Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon and Congress are heading for a replay of their battle royal over federal spending for education.

"Here we go again," a member of the House Appropriations Committee said this weekend after checking a breakdown of the 1971 budget estimates for the Office of Education.

The administration is requesting $3.5 billion for the 100 or so programs under the Office of Education, a $300 million increase over this year.

But Congress added some 2 billion to the 1970 budget for health and education. When Nixon vetoed that bill the lawmakers sent him another one $800 million above his request.

As a means of ending the struggle Congress allowed Nixon to cut 2 per cent of the additional funds wherever he wanted to; with that the President signed the bill.

The figures in the 1970 bill represent Congress' rock-bottom estimate of what is needed right now in the way of federal support for education, and it will undoubtedly press for increases in fiscal 1971. But even the 1970 figures approved by Congress are well above the administration's 1971 budget request.

In the final version of the 1970 bill Congress called for $4 billion for the Office of Education instead of the $3.5 billion Nixon is seeking for 1971.

For the key program that provides remedial aid and special assistance to children from low-income families, Congress said $1.4 billion should be spent, but Nixon is budgeting $1.3 billion.

Desegregation 'Analysis' Due

WASHINGTON (AP) — A top administration civil rights official says President Nixon's promised "comprehensive analysis" on school desegregation cannot have much effect on efforts to integrate classrooms.

Jerris Leonard, chief of the Justice Department's Civil Rights Division, said Sunday: "Really, irrespective of what anybody says about it, the legal process is in motion and it's going to be accomplished at least for all practical purposes."

"Therefore, there's little the President can do by saying something to speed it up. It just can't be done any faster."

In a Saturday session with newsmen, Nixon promised his policy statement Tuesday on desegregation will be "the most comprehensive analysis of the legal situation and also of the problems of segregation" since the historic 1954 Supreme Court order to end segregated schools.

Leonard said the President's statement "certainly will not in any way inhibit the progress that we have tried to make over the past 14 months in enforcing the school desegregation laws."

But, he went on, "There's no such a thing as a clarion call that sets one and only one standard, a direction, one approach to a very difficult problem that must be analyzed on a case by case and individual by individual school district."

Carswell Not Fit For Job: Goldberg

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Supreme Court justice has declared Judge G. Harrold Carswell "is not fit" to serve on the high court.

Arthur J. Goldberg, who seeks the Democratic nomination for governor of New York, broke a long silence on the Carswell nomination when asked if he considered President Nixon's nominee qualified.

The former Supreme Court justice made the statement Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press."

Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., today was expected to call for the return of Carswell's nomination to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Harris, who first made the suggestion Sunday on the Metropolitan Radio News program "Profile," planned to repeat the plea in a speech on the Senate floor. Harris said the committee should have the opportunity to question a former associate of Carswell in the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals who declined to support the nominee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, announced today he will vote against confirmation of Carswell. That brought to 25 the number of announced Carswell opponents. Forty senators have announced support for the nomination.

U.S. Fears Loss Of Base In Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — High ranking U.S. officers say the loss of the key Laotian base town of Long Cheng would seriously reduce the effectiveness of the most reliable troops fighting the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao.

Long Chen, 80 miles north of the administrative capital of Vientiane, is a logistical, administrative and political center for the anti-Communist Meo tribal army, which American military leaders say rates as "a pretty high blue chip on our side."

The Meos, headed by Gen. Vang Pao, are credited with doing most of the effective fighting against the North Vietnamese-Pathet Lao over the past several years.

Without them, there would be little left but the unreliable Royal Lao Army—unless there is more help from the outside.

According to the view of U.S. officials in Washington, impairment of the Meo's effectiveness would put the pro-Communist Pathet Lao in their best political position in eight years of off-and-on fighting and enhance their position in a possible negotiated settlement with the present Laotian government.

Senior U.S. military officers, some of whom have had years of experience in Southeast Asia, were rather slow in acknowledging the current Communist offensive may be more serious than in past years.

There is no uniformity of opinion yet on just what the North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao are up to this year.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, without tipping his own view, told reporters last week opinion within the U.S. government is divided on whether the Communists will try to take over Laos.

Earthquake Kills 14 Near Bombay

BOMBAY, India (AP) — An earthquake rocked the Arabian Sea port of Broach, 200 miles north of Bombay today, killing 14 persons and injuring 79.

About 200 houses were damaged in the shock, which was felt in Bombay.

The tremor caused widespread alarm in Bombay because it coincided with the Hindu spring festival of Holi.

Public To Hear City Candidates

The eight candidates for the city council in the election to be held April 6 will be interviewed tonight at a public meeting of the League of Women Voters.

Sponsored by the League as a public service project, the meeting will be at 8 o'clock in the Chamber of Commerce building. Mrs. Robert Haack is voters service chairman for the League and Mrs. Elnora Vade will serve as moderator. The candidates all have accepted invitations to appear for the meeting at which they will be asked to respond to questions regarding their position on municipal affairs. There are no prepared questions.

Each candidate will be asked to give a brief biography and discuss some of the problems facing Escanaba. The candidates for the one two-year unexpired term are:

Leo Alperovitz, 208 S. 22nd St., business director, Bay de Noc Community College.

Richard Pryal (incumbent) of 204 N. 14th St., pharmacist. He is serving on the Council by appointment.

Eugene O. Slagstad of 621 S. 20th St., Harnischfeger employee.

Candidates for the two four-year terms are:

Harold Cloutier, 1411 3rd Ave. S., insurance man.

John W. Curran, 420 S. 13th St., Harnischfeger employee.

Ronald DeVos of 2515 Lake Shore Drive, First National Bank & Trust Co.

Albin S. Pearson Jr., 2525 1st Ave. S., Escanaba businessman who is in his third year of a four-year term on the Escanaba Area Board of Education.

In the April 6 election terms on the City Council of Pryal, Miles Dupule and Edward J. Cox are expiring. Dupule and Cox are not candidates.

Council members who hold over are Mayor Cecil B. Chase and Mayor Pro-tem Robert Bink.

Public Works Meeting Called

Representatives of cities and townships in Delta County will meet with the Delta County Commissioners at the County Building in Escanaba at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday for a discussion of the County Public Works Act.

Act No. 185 provides for the adoption by any County Commission in Michigan of its provisions for financing essential public works sponsored by townships, cities and villages within the county.

The economy results from placing the faith and credit of the county back of public works borrowing, resulting in a reduced interest rate and saving to the citizens.

A representative of Miller, Canfield, Paddock & Stone, Detroit, one of the nation's leading financial consultants, will attend the Wednesday night meeting.

Conferring with him will be the Delta County Commission, and officials of the cities of Gladstone and Escanaba and of Ford River, Wells and other interested townships.

Ralph D. Ottensman

Ottensman To Head DeMolay

Ralph D. Ottensman, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ottensman of 1115 Wisconsin Ave., Gladstone, was installed as master counselor of Delta Chapter, Order of DeMolay at ceremonies held Saturday evening at the Masonic Temple in Escanaba.

A junior at Gladstone High School, the youth is active in track, football, bowling and golf. He has been a member of Delta Chapter for three years and has been awarded eight DeMolay merit bars. He will serve as head of the Chapter for six months.

Other officers installed were: Senior Counselor Jon Krohmer, Junior Counselor William Buckmiller, Scribe - Treasurer Murray Youngs, Senior Deacon Louis Wery, Junior Deacon William Stein, Senior Steward Robert Prins, Junior Steward James Marmalik, Chaplain Mark Krohmer, Sentinel Robert Russell, Standard Bearer Steve Jensen, and Preceptors Thomas Ritter, Thomas Sealander and Emil Johnson.

DeMolay merit bars were awarded by Dad Advisor Robert Jenshak to Ralph Ottensman, Jon Krohmer, Bill Buckmiller, Louis Wery and Murray Youngs. The Outstanding DeMolay Award was presented to Murray Youngs by Advisor Harry Hayman.

Paul Yoder from Marquette was installing officer for the event and Frank Ladwig from Iron Mountain gave the Flower Talk.

Discotheque Target Of Bomb; 15 Injured

NEW YORK (AP) — A pipe bomb exploded Sunday night at Manhattan's Electric Circus discotheque, injuring 15 persons including eight students on an Easter holiday recess from their North Carolina college.

All but three of the injured were treated and released, hospital spokesmen said. One youth suffered a fractured left leg and another second degree burns of the thigh.

The blast came 20 hours after a bomb exploded at a Bronx brokerage firm knocking out the door and windows. Another bomb was found on the window ledge of the bank next door and disarmed before it could explode. There were no injuries in the brokerage house blast.

The Electric Circus, located on St. Mark's Place in the heart of the East Village, is known for its rock music and psychedelic lighting.

A sparse, rainy-night crowd of about 150, including the vacationing students from Western Carolina University in Cullowhee, N.C., was on hand at 11:40 p.m. when the bomb went off.

"I couldn't believe it," said Rose Pleasant, 18, of Reidsville, N.C. "I thought it was part of the show. Everybody started screaming. Somebody grabbed me and I hobbled to an exit door and down the fire escape."

Police said the pipe was packed with small ammunition that acted like shrapnel. It included a clock timer and one round to set it off.

The discotheque is located in a four-story brownstone. It does not serve liquor and caters primarily to older teen-agers and young adults.

Body Located At Menominee

MENOMINEE — The body of a 21-year-old Marinette man who had been missing for four days was found Saturday in the Menominee River about 20 feet from his submerged automobile.

John Jutte, an employee of the Scott Paper Co., apparently died after his car hit a bridge guard rail and plunged into the river, according to Richard Matty, Marinette County Coroner. He ruled the death a traffic fatality.

Jutte was last seen about 1 a.m. Wednesday at a tavern after he had completed his work shift. He told friends he was going to Menominee, across the river, but never reached his destination.

Skin divers and others searched the river Wednesday and Thursday after finding a break in a guard rail on Riverside Dr. and hub caps of Jutte's car. The search was suspended Friday because of a snowstorm. The river level was lowered Saturday by regulating two dams about a mile apart.

Briefly Told

Rodney Shantz of Rte. 1, Gladstone, was ticketed by Gladstone Police for improper lane usage, following a minor accident. No injuries were reported.

The Archies will be at the Holy Name gymnasium tonight at 8 p.m., sponsored by the senior class at Holy Name.

Jame R. Roman, Rte. 1, Cornell, paid $6 costs on Department of Natural Resources charges of failing to attach registration numbers, in a permanent manner, to each side of the forward half of his snowmobile and Mark T. Robert Jr., of Negaunee, paid $10 fine and $10.50 costs for littering.

Escanaba police have issued traffic court notices to John D. McGillis, Gladstone Rte. 1, failing to stop in the assured clear distance; Norman E. Dittich, Bark River Rte. 1, disobeying a traffic signal; David W. Lanaville, Carney Rte. 1, speeding; and Glenn E. Rose, Charlevoix, failing to exercise due care.

State Police of the Gladstone Post are investigating a break-in at the U.P. Concrete Pipe Co. of Wells. Entrance was gained by breaking a window in the front door between 8 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday, officers said. About $20 in change was taken from the cash box.

Malicious destruction at the St. George Church in Bark River is under investigation by the State Police. The outdoor light fixtures in front of the church were broken off during the night on Saturday, officers reported.

Carroll Rogers of 414 S. 10th St., Escanaba, was ticketed by State Police for disregarding a stop sign.

Greg Larson won an award for car design in the Pinewood Derby of Pack 415. The Daily Press reported in error Friday that the award was presented to Fred Larson.

Harold Lamberg was elected president of the Loafers Travel Trailer Club at the club's meeting Saturday night. Lionel LaBelle was elected vice president and Vi Kellermann was elected secretary-treasurer.

Reservations for the reunion for the Escanaba High School class of 1960 must be made by April 1, the reunion committee reminded today.

Death Claims A. H. Wickman

Arthur H. Wickman, 78, of Rte. 1, Carney died Saturday at the Iron Mountain Veteran's Hospital.

He was born Dec. 20, 1891 in Iron Mountain and was a retired legislative postmaster of the Michigan House of Representatives.

Mr. Wickman was a member of the Stephenson Lodge 492, F&AM, a life member of the Carney-Nadeau American Legion Post, member of Menominee County Volture 40 et al, one of the founders and first president of the Nadeau Booster Club, served as justice of the peace during 1929 and 1930, township supervisor, 1931-1939, Michigan state representative, 1939-1940 and legislative postmaster for 18 years. He also served with the U. S. Army during W.W. I.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Walter F. Kell of Powers; two brothers, Fridolph and Hugo, both of Carney.

Friends may call at the Kell-Tondin Chapel in Spalding from 4 to 9 p. m. today and funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the chapel with the Rev. Robert J. Mueller officiating. Burial will be in the Nadeau Township Cemetery. American Legion visitation will be held at 7:30 today at the chapel.

Drunk Driving Charges Filed

State Police reported the arrest of William John Potvin, of Rapid River, on Sunday evening, for driving while intoxicated. Potvin was arrested on U.S. 2 in Masonville Township and lodged in the Delta County jail, according to State Police.

Gene Bezzi, of Rapid River, a passenger in the car, was ticketed for littering a public highway after police observed him throwing a beer bottle from the car window. State Police said arraignment was scheduled for this morning.

Paul Nickell Dies Saturday

Paul Nickell, 52, a former Bark River resident, died Saturday evening in Milwaukee following a lengthy illness. He was born Dec. 1, 1917 in Peoria, Ill. and had resided in Rochester, Ind. For the past 18 years, he had lived in Escanaba and Bark River.

Mr. Nickell was employed by the Harnischfeger Corp. and had served as scoutmaster in the Bark River area.

He is survived by his widow, Meda; two sons, Larry and Paul of Milwaukee; two daughters, Mrs. Jackie Breeze and Mrs. Stanley (Donna) Kallstrom, both of Milwaukee; two sisters, Mrs. Edward (Mary) Bunell of E. Gary, Ind. and Mrs. Dan (Wilma) Koehler of Ishpeming; one brother, Harland of Hobart, Ind. and 12 grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Boyle Funeral Chapel in Bark River from 5 to 9:30 p.m. today and funeral services will be conducted at 1 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral chapel. The Rev. Ben Helmer will officiate and burial will be in the Bark River Cemetery.

Hearings Due In My Lai Case

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Army investigators begin hearings at Ft. McPherson here today on charges filed against three soldiers in connection with alleged atrocities against Vietnamese civilians.

Newsmen and the general public were barred.

The hearings, similar to grand jury proceedings in a civilian case, are to determine whether the men will face court-martial.

Hearings on charges against Sgt. Charles E. Hutto, 21, of Tallulah, La.; and Pvt. Mac D. Hutton, 22, of Attica, Ind., begin today.

A hearing is scheduled Tuesday on charges against Sgt. Esquivel Torres, 21, of Brownsville, Tex.

The charges stem from the alleged massacre at the village of My Lai in March, 1968, and a separate incident in the area around the same time.

Hutto is charged with rape, murder, assault with intent to commit murder and false swearing.

Hutton is charged with rape, murder and assault with intent to commit murder. Torres is charged with two counts of murder and assault with intent to commit murder.

The Early Bird

The first robin to be reported to the Daily Press so far this spring was seen on Sunday by Miss Susan Stade. It was perched in an apple tree in the yard at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bertel Stade.

Few birds are yet returning to the north because of the backward spring, with snow piled deep in most places and little food uncovered for the new arrivals. The robin seen by Susan Stade was pecking at an apple that still hung to the tree from last year.

Pollution-Free Car Plan Gets Backing Of U.S.

SEATTLE (AP)—Washington will take the lead in going directly to the U.S. Supreme Court in an effort to force car makers to develop a pollution-free engine, the state attorney general's office said Sunday.

Fred Tausend, a special assistant attorney general, said Vermont, Arizona and probably a number of other states will join with Washington in filing an "original action" with the high court—a seldom-used legal tactic.

Tausend said the suit, prepared by Washington Atty. Gen. Slade Gorton, will be filed no later than May 1. Other states have been asked to reply by April 15 if they want to become parties to the suit.

The action, in effect, would be a legal end run around the U.S. District Courts where about 20 state and city suits over automobile pollution have been filed and are being consolidated into a single case to be heard by one judge.

Tausend said that going directly to the U.S. Supreme Court would speed the time when pollution-free cars would be on the road.

He said the suit will accuse automotive manufacturers of having conspired since 1953 to delay the development and installation of effective air-pollution control devices on cars.

Tausend said the plaintiffs will seek to require the automobile companies to adopt a crash program to develop the pollution control devices before the end of the decade.

State Folder Says Few Ounces Could Get You 'Loaded'

LANSING (AP)—A 180-pound man who drinks two 3½-ounce martinis in an hour would have a blood alcohol content of .10 of one per cent and his driving ability would be legally impaired, says a folder prepared by the Secretary of State's office.

The folder, "Drinking and Driving in Michigan," also says a third martini within the hour would raise the blood-alcohol figure to .12, slightly less than the .15 level at which "under the influence" is determined.

The folder says the driving ability of a 100-pound woman would be legally impaired after three 12-ounce beers.

The folder contains a chart showing various weight, drink and blood - alcohol relationships.

Secretary of State James Hare says drinking is a factor in at least half of fatal road accidents and that the drunk - driving content should be lowered from .15 per .10 of one per cent.

Delta Draft Quota Tops In Peninsula

LANSING (AP)—State selective service headquarters today ordered local draft boards to deliver 1,709 men for induction into the Army during April.

Registrants selected for induction in April will include those holding numbers one through 115, except for volunteers.

No registrant with a number in excess of 115 will be selected to fill the April call a spokesman said.

Previously, monthly calls this year were 1,255 in January, 1,915 in February, and 1,360 in March.

An additional 7,600 men have been ordered to take pre-induction physical examinations in April to determine their acceptability for military service.

The quota for Upper Peninsula County boards are as follows: Alger 6, Baraga 2, Chippewa 10, Delta 12, Dickinson 4, Gogebic 6, Houghton 4, Iron 1, Keweenaw 1, Luce 5, Mackinac 0, Marquette 10, Menominee 6, Ontonagon 6, and Schoolcraft 1.

'Archies' Here For Concert At Holy Name

The "Archies," the group that last year recorded the best selling record "Sugar, Sugar" will appear in concert at 8 p.m. today at the Holy Name High School gym.

Tickets will be available at the door, announced the sponsoring Holy Name High School senior class.

Besides "Sugar, Sugar," the group followed up with the release of "Jingle-Jangle" and another hit, "Who's Your Baby."

Mutual Freeze On Arms Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield says he hopes to get approval of a resolution urging a mutual freeze on strategic weapons deployment before U.S.-Soviet arms talks resume next month in spite of a chilly response by President Nixon.

The resolution, approved unanimously by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was called irrelevant by President Nixon during his weekend news conference.

Nevertheless, Mansfield said, "I hope to get it to the floor in a reasonable length of time before the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks are resumed" April 16. He acknowledged there will be opposition.

The committee Friday adopted, on a 10-0 vote, a resolution to have the Senate express its support for a U.S.-Soviet moratorium on deployment of both offensive and defensive strategic weapons systems.

The resolution is a broadened version of a measure that originally advocated a mutual freeze on a new offensive weapon, MIRV—the multiple independently-targeted re-entry vehicle—with which the nuclear warheads on one missile could be aimed at several different targets.

As it stands now, the resolution also would cover antiballistic missile systems.

ITU Printers OK Newspaper Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—International Typographical Union printers and mailers have voted to strike the city's major newspapers if negotiations fail to produce new contracts by March 30.

Typographical Local 6 voted 475 to 4 Sunday to strike, while Mailers Local 6 voted 102 to 1 for the walkout.

The strike authorizations were the first to be given by nine craft unions and the Newspaper Guild of New York, which are engaged in negotiations with the Newspaper Publishers Association of New York City, Fairchild Publications and the Morning Telegraph.

All contracts expire next Monday.

Doctor O.K.'s This Hemorrhoid Treatment For N.J. Couple's Son

Treatment Shrinks Piles, Relieves Pain In Most Cases

Wharton, N.J. Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Jeffers report: "Our son suffered from hemorrhoids. I asked the doctor about Preparation H and he gave us the O.K. Our son is now fine, thanks to Preparation H."

(Note: Doctors have proved in most cases—Preparation H actually shrinks inflamed hemorrhoids. In case after case, the sufferer first notices prompt relief from pain, burning and itching. Then swelling is gently reduced.

There's no other formula for the treatment of hemorrhoids like doctor-tested Preparation H. It also lubricates to make bowel movements more comfortable, soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.) ADV.

T. A. Stade Dies Suddenly

Tennysen A. (Ted) Stade, 69, of 1504 Dakota Ave., Gladstone, died suddenly late Sunday afternoon at his home.

He was born March 1, 1901 in Grand Marais and was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Stade of Gladstone. He was employed by the Soo Line Railway and worked in Gladstone, Enderlin and Minneapolis and later worked for the E. & L. S. Railway as a machinist. He retired in 1962 from the Chicago & North Western Railway.

He is survived by his widow, the former Anne Lahaie of Escanaba; one brother, Lowell R. Stade of Gladstone; two sisters, Mrs. Michael (Rose) O'Brien of Gladstone and Mrs. Dorothy Kvam of Detroit, and several nieces and nephews.

Friends may call at the Skradski Funeral Home after 4 p.m. Tuesday and complete funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the funeral home chapel with the Rev. Clifford DeVore officiating. Burial will be in Fernwood Cemetery.

Two German cities—Münster and Nordlingen—still retain tower watchmen who blow a horn every hour of the night to indicate they are on guard against dangers.

Five are costly crystal. One is 39 cents* at CITGO stations. Can you pick it out?

Did you pick number three? Wrong. It's number four. Don't feel bad. It's a natural mistake. After all, our 39-cent goblet is Midnite Crystal Siemware. It sings when you rub it; it rings when you tap it. And like the others, it is designed and fashioned by top caliber craftsmen.

How do you get it? Make a purchase at any participating CITGO dealer. For only 39 cents, we'll offer you a choice of the 14 oz. size, the 11 oz. size, and the 7½ oz. size. Separately, they're superb. Together, they make a matched ensemble to complement the most aristocratic table setting. You may be interested to know, by the way, that number one is $15.00, number two, $6.50, three is $5.50, five and six are $9.50, $7.50.

Pretty good company for goblets you can get for 39 cents at CITGO.

A nice place to visit.

News Views

Vice President Spiro Agnew, who is not new to the ranks of critics of the nation's press, charged the other day that the news media have smeared government officials with "tons and tons of innuendos."

Michigan Attorney Gen. Frank Kelley, who was the subject of a cover story in "Today" magazine said "irresponsible, reckless and malicious charges against public officials have become a part of a pattern of divisiveness and suspicion which unfortunately permeate public life today."

Rep. James Del Rio (D-Detroit) and 10 other state representatives introduced a resolution into the Michigan House of Representatives to investigate "the feasibility of licensing and regulating reporters and editorial writers." Those three examples are just part of the growing attack on the mass media of the nation, not only newspapers, but magazines, radio and television for what is rather generally lumped into the category of "irresponsibility."

But before too many officials jump on the bandwagon in an effort to discredit or destroy the free enterprise media which the nation's founding fathers thought so valuable to provide Constitutional guarantees for its preservation, perhaps there should be a little soul searching in their own houses.

Most newspaper offices are flooded with a continuous stream of "handouts" in the form of "news releases." Just about every major political figure has his own press secretary. State and federal agencies have entire staffs generating material of mass media consumption.

And if the nation's press exhibits bias in its treatment of news or "irresponsible" reporting, then the very persons who are complaining about it are equally guilty. Many "news releases" are designed to be published in news columns, but seldom present the total picture. Unfavorable developments almost never are mentioned. Criticism is rarely acknowledged, unless—as in Kelley's case—the substance of the published remarks is severe enough to require immediate rebuttal. In Washington and in Lansing there is a continuous race between representatives and senators to see who can be first to get their name on the announcement of a loan or grant to a community in their district, regardless of whether or not the elected official had anything to do with it. Programs and viewpoints are promoted at a cost of millions of tax dollars.

It can be argued, of course, that it's the job of the news media to ferret out the "propaganda" and to use only the facts, but some of this material inevitably appears in print or is broadcast. If George Romney could be "brainwashed" by the Army in Vietnam, it's reasonable to assume that occasionally reporters and editors similarly can be "educated."

The fact the government engages in this type of campaign to "educate" the public does not excuse irresponsible journalism, however, and most journalists worth their salaries will agree that problems do exist and are constantly working to overcome them. There is a responsibility to the public to do both this and to serve a "watchdog" role on government.

Criticism of the news media by government officials and the public will always exist in the same way that the news media will always engage in criticism of government and of the public. This is the nature of the relationship and it serves a key role in the democratic process. And if there are a few journalists who attempt to use their positions for devious purpose, the majority of the nation's press corps is honestly trying to report and interpret society.

Rep. James Brown (R-Okemos) has this to say about the Del Rio resolution:

"If every person who reports any human event and every institution that wants to publish anything has to be approved by the State of Michigan, we will have accomplished what dictators have only dared dream about."

The news media already is regulated by laws of libel and slander and by agencies like the Federal Communications Commission. As society grows more complex, the job of reporting it grows more difficult. The last thing reporters and editors need is further restriction in doing their jobs.

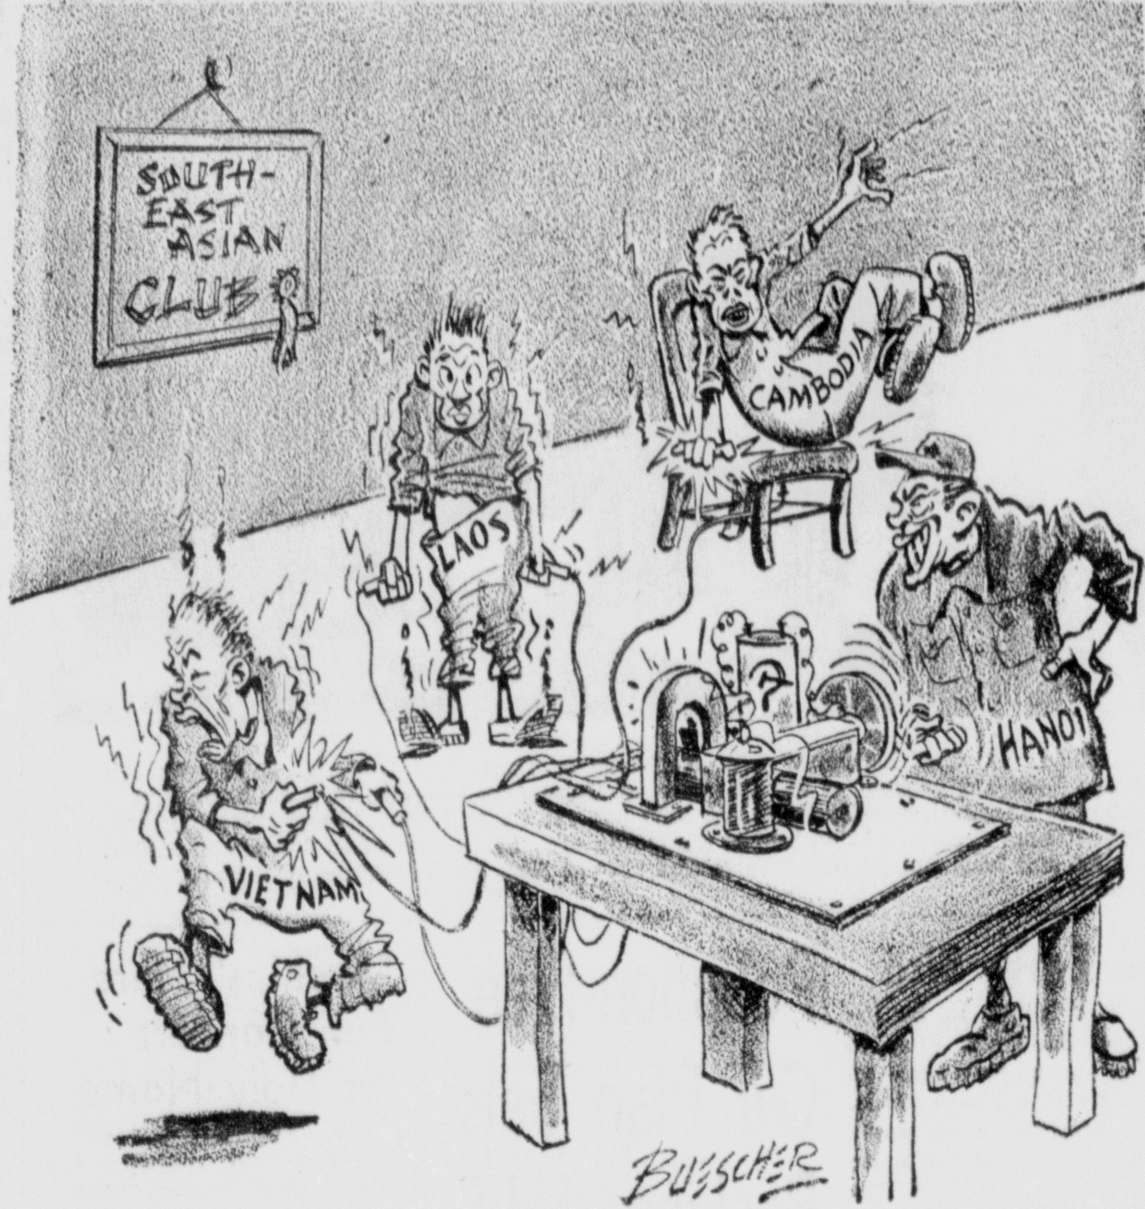

Peninsula Potpourri

Philip and James Ravet of Menominee have revealed plans to form a record company which they expect to open about May 1 or just as soon as legal requirements are processed. Philip, a 1968 Menominee High School graduate, is employed by a printing firm in Milwaukee while James is a senior at Menominee High School. Patti Whipp, a Menominee high senior, is the folk singer for the company's first scheduled record, "Walkin'". Miss Whipp wrote the song and also wrote, "It's Gone," which will be on the flip side of the record.

The nationwide movement to curb air pollution could have a marked effect on a Menominee industry and on the general economy of the community. L. E. Jones Co. of that city is the biggest producer of valve seat inserts in the country. The inserts go into the engine blocks of trucks, tractors and stationary engines. Up to the present they have not been used in Passenger cars. But this may change—and rapidly. Announcement by the major auto-makers that 1971 models will burn lead-free gasoline could change the picture. The thinking of automotive engineers today is that valves in new models will have to be equipped with valve inserts. This would mean that the market for valve seat inserts would be from 60 million to 160 million pieces. Only about 15 million inserts are produced annually now, with half of them coming from the Jones plant.

The last piece of land needed for the Dollarville wildlife impoundment project in Luce County was accepted as a gift by the Michigan Natural Resources Commission at its monthly meeting in Ann Arbor. The 22-acre parcel, located at the dam site and traversed by the south channel of the Tahquamenon River, was conveyed as a local contribution to the project by interested citizens and property owners. The parcel will provide access to the Tahquamenon River and at the Dollarville impoundment.

SHOCK TREATMENT

Will Nixon Receive Strong Candidates?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

The Nixon gambit for the coming Congressional elections is to assume that the Silent Majority is so sick of demonstrations, crime, pro-Hanoi displays, college "pot" parties and post-graduate hard drugs that the purely economic issues won't be able to halt a Republican juggernaut.

But to win by exploiting the Spiro Agnew "strategy of disgust" Nixon should heed Casey Stengel's warning that you can't win if you haven't got the horses. In some places he won't know whether he has some genuinely fleet animals until after the local party executive committees have spoken, or the primaries have determined the ultimate registered Republican choices.

The thing that has Nixon still sitting on Cloud Nine is the William Cahill victory in the New Jersey 1969 gubernatorial race. New Jersey, which to some extent is a dormitory area for New York City and Philadelphia, has become the epitome of the new suburbia, where disgust with violence and demonstration politics runs high. But in neighboring New York State, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller hasn't made the logical deduction.

He still supports the Leftish Charles Goodell for Senator, and, since the Rockefeller word carries tremendous weight in the party, the murmurs that the Speaker of the Assembly, Perry Belmont Duryea Jr. of Montauk on Long Island, would make a more fitting candidate still have a most wistful sound.

In Connecticut, there is no dearth of eager aspirants to the Republican Senatorial nomination.

Congressman Lowell Weicker, a man of fertile ideas, probably has the inside track. If the big autumn issues in his state are local (the plight of the Penn-Central Railroad commuters, the pollution in Long Island Sound, the disruptions caused by urban renewal), Weicker would surely campaign in a way that is pleasing to the White House.

But it is no secret that Weicker goes beyond Nixon on welfare, and his opponent for the nomination, State Senator John Lupton, would like to challenge his loyalty to Nixon on foreign policy. A third candidate, former Congressman Ab Sibal, has possibilities as a "Nixon man," even though his record would tend to put him somewhat on the liberal side.

The precise orientation of the Republican Senatorial candidate in Massachusetts may come under the heading of "so what?" as long as the incumbent Ted Kennedy retains his local appeal and power.

However, if there is a silent drift toward Agnewism in the Bay State, the probability that the Republicans will nominate Josiah Spaulding, the former chairman of the Republican State Committee, cannot be taken as good news for Nixon. Spaulding has attacked the Nixon Administration, and he thinks very little of Spiro Agnew.

Believe it or not, he could even run as a leftist alternative to Teddy Kennedy. To date, the efforts to get Erwin Canham of the Christian Science Monitor, Representative Margaret Heckler of Wellesley (who holds Speaker Joe Martin's old House seat), George Lodge (Henry Cabot Lodge's son), or Rep. Brad Morse of Lowell into the race against Spaulding have not succeeded.

Out in New Mexico, the single spot in the Southwest that has not heretofore gone gung-ho for Nixon Republicanism, there is a possibility that Nixon may yet have a horse willing to carry his philosophical colors.

Anderson Carter, who ran extremely well against Senator Clinton Anderson, a venerable local institution, in the 1966 election, is fighting Gov. David Cargo for the Republican Senatorial nomination. Cargo is the candidate of the liberals, which would have helped him in years gone by. But the political expert of the Albuquerque Journal says that liberalism is now considered something of a liability in the Republican organization.

Carter is a Nixon man down the line who will pitch his campaign to the idea that "we need something different than what we have had in the last thirty years."

To step down a bit to a House of Representatives race, the Cahill victory in New Jersey has resulted in a scramble for the Republican Congressional nomination in New Jersey's 15th District, which takes in most of the extremely fast-growing Middlesex County.

Rep. Ed Patten, the Democrat, has been a four-term winner in Middlesex House elections. But, since Nixon and Cahill both carried the 15th District, seven eager Republican contestants are fighting for the right to oppose Patten.

Charles W. Wiley, who has made a name for himself nationally as the executive director of the National Committee for Responsible Patriotism (he is the fellow who persuaded all those automobile drivers to turn their headlights on as a patriotic gesture on Moratorium Day), hopes to persuade the nominating committee in his district that he is the best man to carry the Nixon colors. He has friends in Washington who are pulling for him.

Nixon, of course, keeps his hands off in the pre-primary jockeying. But this does not mean that he really wants to be represented by a Spaulding or even a Goodell. It's too bad that some Republicans have not managed to get the pitch, which is there even if it must remain tacit.

Changing Sizes Part Of Our Environment

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the ordeals of life is that sizes don't stay the same.

As soon as you get used to a size or an occasion that seems fitting, something happens to it. It changes.

It would seem pretty important that a size remain changeless. For example, how could we estimate the value of property we owned—or even find out just where it began or ended—if an inch yesterday weren't the same inch the day after tomorrow? Or if a foot refused to stay a foot long—and no more or less?

Who could take pride in running a four-minute mile if someone haphazardly decided to shrink the length of the mile and at the same time extend the length of minutes and seconds? In time a tenderfoot Boy Scout would be able to limp a mile in less than two minutes on a stubbed toe.

Yet, although sizes are supposed to be standardized, something or someone always seems to be changing them.

Take the size of a $5 bill. You can measure it with a ruler and measure the size of a steak it would buy 10 years ago. Something has happened to the size of one or the other. In some restaurants the size of a steak that a $5 bill will buy can't even be measured accurately with a ruler. You need a micrometer.

How about that girl you married 20 years ago who bragged she wore a size 10 dress?

She still says she feels uncomfortable in anything larger than a size 10 dress. But if you took one of those dresses she buys and propped it up lengthwise with tentpoles, you could drive a Jeep through it without touching the sides. Does that mean the size of Jeeps is being miniaturized?

The problem is even worse in men's wear. Remember when a fellow felt comfortable in a shirt with a size 15 neck, a pair of size 9-C shoes, a 36-inch belt and a size 40 suit?

Well, today that same fellow—no more than 25 years older—feels pinched by a size 9½ pair of shoes, a size 44 suit, a size 40 belt and a size 16 shirt. He is uncomfortable from toenail to tonsil.

The real truth is that sizes aren't constant in any field anymore. Years feel shorter than they used to be, but many a day lasts interminably longer.

The size of wars appears to be even harder to figure. You get in one that you are assured is small, preventive economy-size war, and the next thing you know it is unmistakably bigger, doesn't appear particularly preventive, and is about as economical as bankruptcy.

Even the size of words has become confused. There was a time when a big deal was a big deal. But now when your wife says to you, "big deal,"—well, you don't feel like a major wheel.

Unless some agency like the U.S. Bureau of Standards can help us standardize our standards, how are we ever going to be able properly to size-up our size-ups?

The bidding:
North East South West
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ 4 NT
Pass 5 ♥ Dble

Opening lead—three of diamonds.

This deal occurred in the match between France and Italy in the 1963 world championship and resulted in an enormous gain for the French team.

At the first table, with Pabisti and D'Alelio North-South for Italy against Ghestem and Bacherich for France, the bidding went as shown. Pabisti's two club opening was artificial and showed a three-suited hand. Two spades was natural, and North's three clubs showed good spade support and five clubs.

When D'Alelio now leaped to game in spades, Bacherich unexpectedly got into the act by bidding four notrump. This showed support for the unbid suits, and when East responded five hearts, South doubled.

D'Alelio led his singleton diamond and Ghestem had no trouble scoring 850 points. He won with the ace, took three rounds of trumps, established dummy's diamonds, and eventually lost two tricks. Had D'Alelio led a spade the contract would inevitably have gone down.

At the second table, with Theron-Desrousseaux North-South for France and Garozzo-Chiaradia East-West for Italy, the bidding went:

Again the French declarer made the doubled contract. Desrousseaux ruffed the ace of hearts led in dummy, played a low diamond which was won by West, ruffed the heart continuation in dummy with the jack, played the A-9 of trumps and took the marked finesse, and eventually lost a club trick to duplicate his teammates' score of plus 850.

So the French team made a game with the East-West cards as well as with the North-South cards, but, despite their 1,700 point gain on the deal, they eventually lost the match to the Italians.

Letters

It is impossible to list all the people of this area who should receive a loud "thank you" for all the backing, attention, and kindness you gave the Holy Name High School basketball team these last two weeks. Perhaps this public letter can in a small way express to each of you our appreciation for what you gave our coach and team.

Coach Gordon LeDuc and the basketball team at Holy Name did a wonderful job winning the District and Regional Tournaments, becoming U. P. Class B Champions, and gave us a great game in Alpena. Part of their success is due to the fans of the school, the city, the county and surrounding area, who backed them so enthusiastically. The large following of people wherever they went, even downstate, the letters, telegrams, signs, and personal greetings all showed how you, their families and friends, were with them all the way.

Our special thanks to the Escanaba City Council for their resolution of praise, to the Chamber of Commerce, the First National Bank and the news media for their public displays of good wishes, to the Escanaba Area Public Schools and the other school districts of our area who sent their encouragement.

We feel that the 12 young men on our basketball team, their two managers and their coach represented not only our school, but our city and county in their achievement, and they were well suited to do this. We have seen some disagreement and difference of opinion among our citizens over our school problems in this last year. We are pleased and proud that our young men have been the source of unity, harmony, and togetherness at this time.

Again our thanks to all the people of Escanaba, the county, and area who backed our team so well. May God bless you all.

Ann Landers

Wife Swapping Not Lady's Idea Of Fun

Dear Ann Landers: I am dating a 50-year-old divorced man. Our relationship seems to be one of mutual respect and affection. Recently he startled me with a statement defending couple swapping.

I expressed the opinion that such behavior was a symptom of marital disorder. He claims he knows several couples who engage in wife swapping regularly—that they are charming, intelligent, well adjusted and very much in love. His explanation was that they are "highly sexed and have left-over love to give."

I am puzzled. Is he testing me? Is he reacting to his own unsuccessful marriage? Although I've never been married I'm sure I could forgive an unpremeditated slip. A marriage that permits planned infidelity as part of the package, however, is beyond me.

Am I square, stupid or naive?—E. W. B.

Dear E. W. B.: If you are square, stupid and naive that makes two of us. Those wife-swapping friends may be very charming and even intelligent but they are not well adjusted. Married couples who are very much in love don't have anything "left over." Before you marry this man make sure you have a clear understanding of what he expects of you. I think he may be trying to tell you something.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I returned to my office after dinner to clean up some paper work. I finished about 9:30 and headed for the parking lot behind our building. As I approached my car I saw someone sitting in it. I opened the door and there was a woman—bombed out of her mind, either on booze or drugs. She said, "Drive me home or I'll scream and have you arrested for rape." I decided to comply with her request.

As I drove, she kept mumbling about how rotten life is. When we reached her duplex she said, "Thanks. You're a good guy."

I told my wife about the incident and she was horrified. She said I should not have taken the woman home—that I should have thrown her out of the car and driven off.

What do you say?—Hindsight 20-20

Dear Hind: Your first mistake was leaving your car unlocked. Last night it was a drunken woman. Next time it could be a hoodlum with an iron pipe.

Your second mistake was opening the car door when you saw someone sitting there. You should have gone for a policeman.

Dear Ann Landers: Our 20-year-old daughter married a no good rat two years ago. We tried to talk sense to her but it was no use. Six months ago he broke her jaw and she sued for divorce. She didn't realize at the time she was pregnant. The baby is due any time. Her father insists on taking her to the hospital when she goes to deliver. She doesn't want him there. I have talked myself hoarse but it's no use. Maybe you can get through to him. He thinks you are a smart lady.—Dumb Wife

Dear Wife: Your daughter's doctor should "get through to him." Often a man thinks a lady is smart until she disagrees with him. Then suddenly she is just another dumb-bell. Like his wife.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50c in coin with your request and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed and stamped envelope.

College Plans Practical Nurse Special Course

Mrs. Martha Harper, Bay de Noc Community College's director of Practical Nursing, announced a special course for licensed practical nurses seeking to update and extend their nursing knowledge. The course starts at Bay de Noc and five other centers in Michigan in mid April.

Sponsored by the Michigan League for Nursing, a Michigan United Fund agency, in cooperation with the Michigan Licensed Practical Nurses Association, the course offered at Bay de Noc Community College is intended for LPNs in Iron, Delta, Dickinson, Menominee and Schoolcraft counties.

Titled, "Current Concepts and Treatments in Medical Surgical Nursing," the course will include lectures, classroom demonstrations, films and ward observations. Classes will be held one evening a week for ten weeks starting Wednesday, April 15, 1970. Applications should be filed not later than April 10 with the director of the Practical Nursing School at Bay de Noc Community College, Escanaba.

Fee for the 25 hour course is $40 payable in divided payments. For an application form and brochure with additional information, licensed practical nurses may contact the Michigan League for Nursing, 41 West Warren, Detroit, Michigan 48201, or call the Bay de Noc Community College School of Practical Nursing, phone 786-0331.

U-M Faculty Ad Protests Unrest At University

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A group of University of Michigan faculty members opposed to what they see as the increasing occurrence of campus violence took out a full-page ad in the Ann Arbor News Sunday to express their views.

Led by philosophy Prof. Abraham Kaplan and Prof. Bernard Galler of the communications science department, the ad called for an end to "disruptions and violence occurring with increasing frequency at the university."

The 521 faculty signers of the advertisement backed four principles: That there is no place on the campus for violence, that there must be complete freedom of movement on the campus, that libraries, offices and research facilities be free from disruption and that classes be conducted without outside influences.

Galler said similar ads will appear shortly in the Michigan Daily, the student paper; and in the Lansing State Journal.

He said the ads, which cost a total of $1,510, were paid for by contributions from the signers.

Gifts, Grants

EAST LANSING (AP)—Michigan State University has accepted gifts and grants totaling more than $1.72 million.

Serviceman Backs Sheriff In Rift Over Haircuts

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A Vietnam serviceman has started a fund for Washtenaw County Sheriff Douglas Harvey who is being sued by five student protestors whose long locks were shown in the county jail Feb. 15.

A $200,000 federal court suit was filed in Detroit by the five who had been arrested in connection with a street fight between University of Michigan students and Ann Arbor police.

The five youths charged their constitutional rights were violated by the haircuts.

This week, Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny received a letter from a serviceman in Vietnam. Enclosed was $1, a newspaper clipping of the five short students and a note declaring, "Congratulations on the haircuts. Please give this dollar to a police relief fund." Krasny said he's turning the money over to Harvey.

Acting Warden

LANSING (AP) — Perry M. Johnson, deputy director of the State Corrections Department, has been named acting warden at the State Prison of Southern Michigan, effective March 29.

The temporary appointment was made pending results of an examination for the position currently being processed by the State Civil Service Department, said Corrections Director Gus Harrison.

Dear Heloise:

As a young mother of a two-month-old son, I have found a way to make motherhood just a little easier!

Our baby is at the age where he is fascinated with looking around at everything and watching me every move.

So I discovered that by placing his little plastic infant seat in his bassinette (which has rollers and high edges on it), he can not only see me as I do my housework, but I can move around freely without worrying about him falling over.

The infant seat has adjustable heights on the backrest, so as your baby grows, you can raise the backrest to almost straight up.

He really seems to look forward to being raised up so he can watch mommy at work.

Another nice thing about it is that if I have to go into another room for a while, I just wheel the whole thing (infant bassinette, and baby) right along with me.

Dear Heloise:

For the busy housewife who wants to save wear and tear on her better aprons, this is what I've done for many years.

If you have no other vital use for men's long-sleeved shirts that are no longer wearable, use them for aprons.

Just cut off the collar, use the long sleeves for the ties, and you have a quick, ready-made apron.

Sure holds down the cost of making or buying aprons.

Moreover, you get more skirt coverage with the shirts.

I have accumulated enough shirt aprons to change each day to a fresh, clean one.

V. M. A.

This may sound corny but I fell into this idea by accident. The other morning I was getting breakfast and my eggs kept rolling on the cabinet before I had a chance to break them. So I spotted a pair of scissors lying there and I placed each egg in the handle of the scissors (accommodates two) and that stopped the rolling.

Democrats To Push Minimum Wage Bill; School Aid Simmers

LANSING (AP) — Majority Democrats in the Michigan House plan to push this week for passage of a bill to raise the state's hourly minimum wage from $1.25 to $1.45 starting July 1 and to $1.60 by 1972.

With the Legislature expected to adjourn Thursday for a seven-day Easter recess, two huge education-related appropriation and tax bills probably will continue to simmer on back burners in both chambers.

The Senate, where Petoskey Republican Thomas Schweigert is to be sworn in tonight as acting lieutenant governor, is not expected to act on the massive, $1.22-billion school aid bill which passed the House several weeks ago.

In its present form the bill is some $247.8 million above the spending level approved by the Senate last December and more than $270 million above what Gov. William G. Milliken requested. It represents a 44 per cent increase over this year's $348 million school aid.

The House, at the same time, probably will delay action again on a complex, $360-million tax measure that would increase the state personal income tax rate from 2.6 per cent to 3.5 per cent.

More Delay Predicted

House Speaker William A. Ryan, who helped work out the controversial bill with Rep. Roy Spencer, R-Attica, predicted more delay to allow legislators more time to study both the tax bill and the school aid bill.

Reaction from public school administrators and lobbyists still is quite mixed, Ryan said. Part of that is attributed to the $22-million parochial section added to the school aid formula. Ryan and Spencer hope the proposed 44-per cent increase in education funds will encourage educators to press legislators to vote for both bills.

Need House Approval

Three bills aimed at raising $30 million for Milliken's $1.74 billion budget almost must receive final House approval. Passed with relatively little House opposition last December, the bills would eliminate a series of exemptions from the 4-per cent state sales and use taxes and from the diesel fuel tax.

An even more controversial reorganization bill now up for preliminary House action calls for consolidation of the state's 644 local school districts and elimination of most of the 114 districts that do not have full, kindergarten-through-high school programs. A dozen existing but unoperating districts would be scrapped. And another 273 K-12 districts with fewer than 2,000 students would be consolidated into larger units.

Wage Bill Vote Seen

The increased minimum wage, Ryan said, should be pushed to a final vote before Thursday's Easter recess. The bill now before the House calls for a $2 minimum wage, but amendments sponsored jointly by Reps. George F. Montgomery, Democratic floor leader, and William Hampton, Republican minority floor leader, will scale the increase back to $1.45 effective July 1, Ryan said.

Milliken has endorsed a schedule of increases calling for $1.45 July 1; $1.50 by Jan. 1, 1971; $1.55 on July 1, 1971 and $1.60 starting Jan. 1, 1972.

The point of partisan contention is expected to be lower hourly minimums for tipped employees — waitresses, bartenders and drive-in carhops.

Minimum Wage

A Senate version of the House bill, introduced by Republicans Robert Vander Laan of Grand Rapids and Oscar Bouwsma of Muskegon, proposes a $1 minimum wage for those workers, with gradual, nickel increases to $1.15 an hour in 1972.

A bitter House floor debate on that issue resulted ultimately in defeat of the $1.45 hour minimum last summer after it passed the Senate. More debate is expected this year.

Market Goes Into Another Decline In Early Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market went into a decline in moderate trading soon after the opening today.

This morning the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials had slipped 0.86 to 762.80. Declines exceeded advances by a fairly wide margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

The postal strike continued to have a depressing effect on trading volume.

Analysts said investors continued to hold to the sidelines while awaiting definite action on lowering of interest rates.

Changes of most key issues were fractional, but a few ran to a point or so.

The market slipped lower on Friday on the lowest volume of the year.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials declined 1.32 to 763.66, bringing the week's loss to 8.45.

The Associated Press 60-stock average on Friday went down 1.0 to 278.8.

LARGE NUMBERS OF DEAD COHO SALMON are being found beneath the ice of Haymeadow Creek this spring after last fall's adult spawning run of fish released as smolts in the spring of 1968. Above, Warren Lee probes the ice along the bank of the creek. He was accompanied by Ray Richards, center, and Daily Press photographer Bernard Schultz, who took these pictures. Below, a pile of salmon removed from the creek lies on the ice. Sportsmen have expressed concern about possible pollution of the stream from the dead salmon. The Department of Natural Resources is monitoring stream conditions at several points. Most of the dead and deteriorated fish are expected to decompose further and wash into the Whitefish River and Little Bay de Noc during the high water spring runoffs. For a report on the salmon program in the area, read "Salmon Report" by Cliff Long, Escanaba district fish biologist for the DNR, appearing in the Daily Press. T. John Lesinski Court Candidate

LANSING (AP) — Chief Judge T. John Lesinski of the Court of Appeals said today he will be a candidate for nomination for a seat on the State Supreme Court.

Lesinski said he was running for the high court in hopes he could "give it the leadership it needs and to bring an end to the bickering there."

"We have to restore the image of our judicial system in these troubled times," Lesinski said. "We cannot have respect if they resort to petty bickering."

Radar Base In Nile Delta Hit

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes flew deep into Egypt today and pounded a radar base in the Nile Delta about 100 miles north of Cairo, the military command announced.

No details were disclosed about the strength or extent of the strike at the radar station near the town of Baltim.

A military spokesman in Tel Aviv said only that all Israeli planes returned safely from the raid.

Baltim is on the Mediterranean Sea.

It was last raided by Israeli jets Feb. 2 soon after Defense Minister Moshe Dayan defined the policy of air strikes into the Egyptian heartland as a way of weakening Egyptian morale and demonstrating Israel's supremacy over the skies of the Middle East.

The raid on the Baltim radar station today was the 16th Israeli air strike deep into Egypt since the beginning of the year.

Three Strong Candidates Seek State Court Seats

LANSING (AP) — Democrats likely will be playing a game of musical chairs when they have to nominate candidates for the State Supreme Court. There are three strong runners but only two seats to fight over.

So it will be the classical case of trying to pour a gallon of wine into a quart jug. There will be some wasted and one popular prospective judge will be eliminated.

The three and their status are:

Former Gov. G. Mennen (Soapy) Williams. Williams said in answer to a query Friday: "I'm pretty close to it, but I haven't made up my mind yet."

Former Gov. John Swainson. Now a Wayne County Circuit Court judge. He is a sure candidate and already is out fundraising.

Chief Judge T. John Lesinski of the court of appeals, also a former lieutenant governor and a 10-year member of the House of Representatives. Close associates say the reason for a news conference he is calling Monday morning is to announce his candidacy.

Two seats will be up for grabs because former Gov. Harry F. Kelly will be 75 in April and is retiring. The State Constitution now provides that judges over 70 years of age can't run for re-election.

Justice John R. Dethmers' term expires this year. He will be a candidate for re-election.

But court observers have noted that the incumbency designation hasn't helped high court judges running for re-election lately. Rather, it has been a kiss of death.

Unfavorable publicity about the court lately also might hurt Dethmers.

This has included lavish spending by the justices for their new offices and the squabble over their refusing to pay a 50-cent parking fee.

Dethmers still is thought to be the most likely Republican candidate.

Kelley is a Democrat. Most observers feel Republicans won't try to run a candidate for that seat and will concentrate on just taking one court vacancy. This way, they could split the Democratic vote.

Wayne County Circuit Court Judge Edward S. Piggins already has announced he will try for the state's top court job if the GOP party wants two men in.

Other Republicans who have indicated they are willing include Wayne County Circuit Court Judge James L. Ryan and Michael D. O'Hara of Detroit, a former one-term Supreme Court justice now sitting on temporary assignment on the Appeals Court bench.

The interrelationship between Williams, Swainson and Lesinski is interesting.

Lesinski was in the House during 10 of the 12 years Williams served his record terms as governor. He then was lieutenant governor under Swainson for one term and under former Gov. George Romney for another term. He has been on the appeals court bench for five years.

Lesinski has slimmed 90 pounds off his former weight that once went up to 375 pounds and expected to make the fastest run. He is considered the most popular among young Democrats and ethnic groups.

Swainson has matured from his former happy-go-lucky image and also is better known among the younger group of Democrats expected to run the convention.

Williams, despite his record six terms in office as governor, was beaten in the 1965 Senate race.

This caused him to lose some of his former glamour. Also, Williams was out of the state for quite a period of time serving in federal posts.

Williams has been sprucing up his image lately, grew long sideburns, is wearing sports clothes and has a magnificent tan.

He still has many loyal supporters and it will be intriguing to see if the combination of the new look and the magic of the green bow tie trademark still can sway Democratic delegates when they pick their two champions.

Brazzaville Coup Apparent Failure

KINSHASA, the Congo (AP) — An insurgent group tried to overthrow the Communist-line regime of President Marien Nguabi in Congo Brazzaville before dawn today, but by noon the coup apparently had fizzled.

Informants said the plotters, believed to be military men, seized several major public buildings including the radio station and arrested Nguabi about 4 a.m.

For about two hours, Radio Brazzaville drummed out announcements that the government had been overthrown. Just before dawn, shooting could be heard across the Congo River, and flares were seen.

The broadcast said the Communist constitution that Nguabi proclaimed last Dec. 31 had been dissolved. It said the names of members of the new government would be announced later in the day.

Wound Fatal

MONROE (AP) — James P. Neil, 38, of Monroe died in a Monroe hospital Sunday night of a bullet wound he suffered March 15.

Being held is Marvin L. Burt, Sr., 38, also of Monroe, who was charged March 16 with assault with intent to commit murder. Bond was set at $25,000 last week. He was charged before the man died.

DNR Beefing Up Forest Fire Laws

LANSING (AP) — Motorists and other visitors to Michigan's north country are warned by the State Department of Natural Resources that Michigan's forest fire laws are a lot tougher this year.

Spring fires already have started to take their toll, the department said.

New provisions of Michigan's fire law forbid the discarding of any burning materials—lighted matches, cigarette ashes or similar items—in forest and grassland areas.

This means all motorists traveling in rural parts of the state must use their ashtrays and better not flick a cigarette butt out the window. The penalty is up to $100 fine or 90 days in jail or both.

Pro Leagues Stage Draft; Maravich Denies Signing

NEW YORK (AP) — If Pete Maravich isn't a high draft pick today by the National Basketball Association, it's probably a good indication the NBA thinks the LSU Pistol has reached an accord with the American Basketball Association.

Maravich and his father, LSU Coach Press Maravich, repeatedly denied over the weekend that Pistol Pete has signed—or agreed to terms—with the Carolina Cougars of the ABA.

The ABA's New Orleans Bucs don't think so either. An official of the financially troubled Louisiana franchise says the Bucs are still dickering for Maravich under an ABA agreement that New Orleans can sign him—if he wants to play there. New Orleans would have to compensate Carolina for the loss of Maravich, however.

The ABA conducts the remainder of its draft here today—starting at 10 a.m., EST. The league held the first four rounds earlier behind closed doors but most of the ABA selections have leaked out and the so-called Lively League has already signed four first-round picks—All-Americans Rick Mount of Purdue and Dan Issel of Kentucky, Charlie Scott of North Carolina and Mide Maloy of Davidson.

The NBA, with Detroit picking first, got into action two hours later.

"We feel regrettable that some of these players didn't wait until we had our draft," said Nick Curran, an NBA official. "These players didn't even wait to see what the NBA could offer. In some cases, they might have gotten more."

Detroit was expected to draft Bob Lanier, the St. Bonaventure giant, who was earlier picked by the ABA's New York entry. Lanier, it was reported, has agreed to a $1.5 million order from the NBA. That's $100,000 more than the deal Lew Alcindor got a year ago for signing with Milwaukee of the NBA.

Alcindor's pact has already been equalled—or perhaps topped—in the signing by the ABA's Kentucky Colonels of All-American Isel, who got an announced $1.4 million, but perhaps more. Kentucky has also signed Mike Pratt of Kentucky and Claude Virden of Murray State.

The Indiana Pacers of the ABA have signed Mount for a reported pact that could ultimately mean a million dollars for the Purdue start over a four-year period. Indiana has also been negotiating with its No. 2 choice, Dennis Awire of Santa Clara.

Other ABA signings and selections:

—Washington: Scott of North Carolina, No. 1, signed for $500,000. The Caps also announced the signing of former New Mexico star Greg Howard, their No. 2 pick. But Howard, at his Albuquerque home, denied this Sunday. "Actually, I couldn't sign even if I wanted to. I'm under contract to Sardinia in the Italian League for the season and our season doesn't end until April 15," said Howard.

—Dallas: No. 1 Bob Croft, Tennessee, unsigned. No. 2 Emanuel Cannon, Grambling, signed, undisclosed amount. Also drafted John Johnson, Iowa; Joe Hamilton, North Texas State; and Nate Archibald, Texas-El Paso.

—New Orleans: No. 1 Sam Lacey, New Mexico State, unsigned; No. 2 Wendell Ladner, Southern Mississippi, signed, undisclosed amount. No. 3, traded away. No. 4 George Johnson, S. F. Austin, unsigned.

Los Angeles—No. 1 Dave Cowens, Florida State. Also drafted Rudy Tomjanovich, Michigan, who reportedly has signed with the NBA but no specific team, and Jim McMillan, Columbia.

Pittsburgh—No. 1 Mike Maloney, Davidson, signed for $150,000. No. 2 Calvin Murphy, Niagara All-American, unsigned.

Miami—No. 1 John Hummer, Princeton, unsigned.

Tigers Defeated By Yankees 5-3

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Tiger third baseman Don Wert, whose poor hitting has occasionally jeopardized his starting spot despite his fine glove, came through with two hits Sunday, but they couldn't save Detroit from a 5-3 defeat at the hands of New York Yankees.

Wert went to the Tiger training camp at Lakeland this spring as one of three third basemen on the roster, and, although he was the odds-on favorite to end up with the starting assignment, his work was cut out for him.

He hit only .225 last season and faced aggressive challenges from rookies Elliott Maddox and Dalton Jones. But so far this spring, Wert has pulled his average up to .305 and is starting fairly regularly at third.

"I was watching the ball, waiting to see what pitch was coming," said Wert. "But by the time you see the ball, it's too late to get a good swing. You're supposed to attack the pitch, then see where it's going."

Wert's prolonged batting slump began when he was badly beaned in June, 1968.

"I guess I got into the habit when I came back after I was hit," he said. "and once you get doing something like that it's hard to quit."

The Yankees buried the Tigers when they touched starter Joe Niekro for four runs in the fifth inning Sunday.

The Tigers' only real clout came from Maddox' two-run homer in the seventh. Al Kaline also scored after singling in the eighth.

The game was the Tigers' 11th exhibition loss against six victories.

Marquette Wins Tourney Crown

NEW YORK (AP) — He is not of heroic proportions although his disciples call him "The Dream". All Dean Meminger does is win basketball games with quiet proficiency.

Coach Al McGuire of Marquette labels Meminger "my star"—and an audience of 19,500 at Madison Square Garden Saturday would have had to agree.

Meminger's star quality play-making helped Marquette put away St. John's 65-53 to win the 33rd National Invitation Tournament.

"Every team has to have a star," said McGuire, flushed with the euphoria of his first championship, "and Meminger is mine."

Dean picked up the Most Valuable Player trophy for his work in the tournament, but was characteristically modest. "The whole team contributed," said the slope-shouldered, 6-foot guard. "It was a team effort."

It was a sweet homecoming for The Dream, who played his high school ball in New York.

"I've been playing basketball for 14 years," he said. "There's nothing much else to do when you grow up in an area like I did (Upper Manhattan)."

"The first thing you learn is that if you learn to play basketball well, it's a passbook to a college education."

Meminger said he was satisfied with most of his game Saturday, but "I couldn't get my game together in the second half. The St. John's trap defense nullified me."

"Apparently not enough," added St. John's coach Lou Carnesecca.

Meminger was also chosen on the AP's all-tournament team along with Danny Hester and Pete Maravich of Louisiana State; Jim Ooley of Army and Rich Yunkus of Georgia Tech.

Jeff Sewell and Joe Thomas of Marquette; Joe DePre of St. John's; Mike Goyavi of Army and Al Sanders of LSU made the second team.

The two bid D's — Defense and Dean—spelled the story of the championship game as Carnesecca later pointed out: "They're the best defensive club we've ever faced. In fact, I don't see a weakness in them at all."

The brawling Redmen tried to make a game of it after Marquette bolted to a 13-2 lead at the start and 35-25 at the half. St. John's whittled it down to the clock before another Marquette surge.

McGuire felt the game was won in the first seven or eight minutes when his Warriors built leads to 16 points behind Meminger's well-executed play-making and an awesome press. Carnesecca: "We tried to get the ball inside, but we couldn't. Their defense was something."

Maravich, meanwhile, closed out his fabulous college career by sitting on the bench with an injury as LSU lost to Army 75-68 for third place.

Maravich, college basketball's all-time scoring leader, wouldn't talk to reporters after the game.

"I've been talking to reporters all week—and I've said all there is to say," he told one sports writer. "What are you going to do, ask me about the ball game? I didn't play. I've talked to people all week—I just want to walk out with the team."

As Maravich left the dressing room and walked into the hallway with some of his teammates, a heckler yelled a derogatory remark.

One of Maravich's teammates started to turn, but Pistol Pete said: "Don't let that bother you . . . just keep walking."

Then another newsman called: "Pete."

He turned and was greeted by a handshake.

"I just wanted to say goodbye, that's all," the reporter said.

"Thanks, I appreciate that," Maravich said, and walked out the door.

Thirteen Teams Notch Victories In Cage Tourney

HERMANVILLE — Thirteen teams registered victories in opening round games of the 32nd Annual Upper Michigan and Northeastern Wisconsin Amateur Gold Medal Basketball Tournament over the weekend and will advance into the second round of Class B play Tuesday night.

At 6:30 Tuesday Escanaba Robinson faces the Stephenson Strollers, while Negaunee Olympia Bar plays Menominee Jozwiak's Bar at 7:45. The Niagara Badgers play Stambaugh's Bar at 9 and Iron Mountain Edwards' Chevrolet tackles Republic in the nightcap at 10:15.

Two overtime games spiced the opening rounds with Escanaba Robinson rallying for a 103-97 win in three overtimes from Stephenson Strollers. Construction Co. Saturday. Robinson's was paced by Bob Ebbesen's 37 points and Lynn LaPlant's 24. Pete Thyme had 30 and Roger Wood 20 points for Stephenson.

Norway Louie's Bar whipped Iron Mountain Hosking Oil 86-61 in the second game with John Nylund netting 19 for the winners and Mark Eslingaur 17 for Hosking.

Stambaugh's Bar with Brook Smith hitting 19 points in a balanced scoring attack defeated Spalding Labre's Foodland 88-72. Jack Fleetwood led Labre's with 23 points.

Sagola Club House edged the Carney Independents 94-91 behind the hot shooting of Roger Bloom and Todd Lendman, who had 23 and 21 points respectively. Carney was led by Dick Smith with 22 and Dave Livermore with 21 points.

In Saturday night's finale,

Huskies Upended In Puck Tourney

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (AP)—Michigan Tech's Huskies lost both of its games in the NCAA Hockey championship at Lake Placid, N.Y., over the weekend. Tech bowed to Clarkson, 4-3, Friday night, and then lost the consolation round game to Wisconsin on Saturday, 6-5.

Unbeaten Cornell won the championship, downing Clarkson, 4-3.

It was Michigan Tech's sixth appearance in the tournament. The Huskies won the title in 1962 and 1965.

In losing to Wisconsin, Tech fell victim to Bob Poffenroth's record setting performance and Murray Heatley's four goals.

Poffenroth, a 21-year-old senior center from Calgary, Alberta, broke the NCAA record for most assists in a single game with five. The old record was four assists held by five men.

Spartans Win Season Opener

MIAMI (AP)—Michigan State University tried out seven pitchers Sunday — one in each inning — as the Spartans beat Florida State 6-5 in baseball.

Larry Ike, who came on for the sixth inning got credit for the win, despite giving up a two-run homer which tied the game for Florida State at 4-4.

Ike was still the pitcher of record in the bottom of the sixth when Tim Bograkov hit a two-run single, which proved to be the winning margin.

Bosox Walk Around Bases In 10-7 Romp Over Twins

By The Associated Press
In the beginning, Abner Doubleday or, if you prefer, Alexander Cartwright, decided that in their game of baseball, four balls out of the strike zone would allow the batter to take first base.

It was to be known as a base on balls, a walk, a free ticket and a few other things by managers who've suffered with them through the years.

Bill Rigney, a manager who has done his share of suffering, sat quietly by Sunday watching his Minnesota staff issue 15 ... that is 15 ... walks against Boston. The Red Sox didn't need much more to beat the Twins 10-7.

Rigney, who developed a king-sized ulcer in earlier managerial stints at San Francisco and California, was simply sputtering after the Twins' 14th exhibition loss as against only one victory.

"I've never been in a training camp where so many have walked," said Rigney. "It's disgraceful, absolutely disgraceful."

Then Rigney considered the plight of his club and looked toward the sky.

"I know it's Sunday and I'm not supposed to swear," he said, "but I'm ... I'm just tired of losing."

Iron Mountain Edwards rallied for a 80-75 win over Marinette Adams Service. Dale Race paced Marinette with 29 points while Dennis DeMeres had 19 for the winners.

Sunday, Escanaba Tom's Signs blasted Iron Mountain White Star 81-56 behind Steve Nelson's 18 points. Crystal Falls McNeil's Oilers dumped Tremaine Herb's 88-66 with Tom Davis scoring 20 points for the winners and Wayne Lessardi 17 for Tremaine. Republic nipped Hermansville Joe's Tavern 69-68 despite the 27 point performance from Joe's Rick Simic.

The Stephenson Strollers defeated Escanaba Independent No. 2 69-44. Tom Boyle had 15 points for Escanaba. Menominee Jozwiak's Bar squeaked by Manistique "Jahn's Coolers" 79-73 and Wildwood of Hermansville battled Norway Big Ed's into two overtimes before winning 88-84. The Wildwood team was paced by Terry Johnson and Rick Arduin with 19 and 28 points respectively.

Felch Solberg Bar derailed Escanaba Independents No. 1 team 62-55, and in the night cap, WMAM Radio of Marinette upended Escanaba Ness Construction Co. 80-68. Bill Micheau and Fred Boddy paced Escanaba with 22 points. Dave Busick had 31 for Marinette.

Orr, Esposito Shine In Pro Hockey Tilts

By The Associated Press
The torrid race in the National Hockey League's East Division took a momentary back seat to some individual heroes Sunday night.

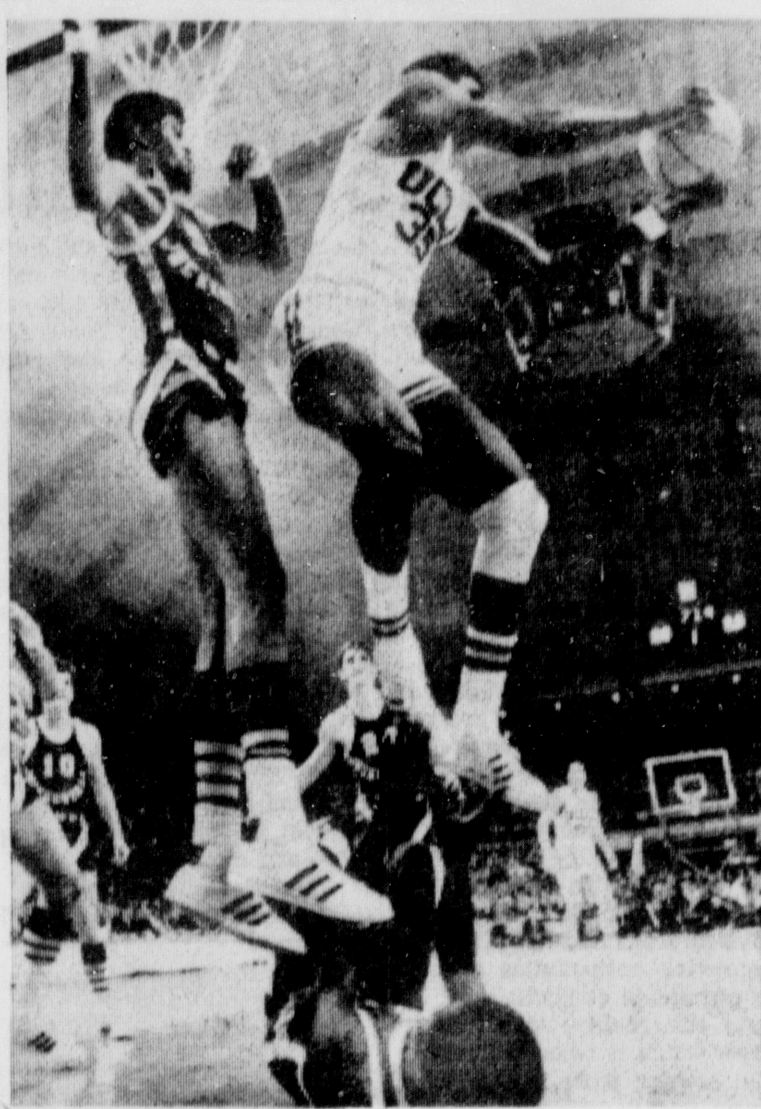

Boston maintained its one-point lead over Chicago, shutting out Minnesota 5-0 with Bobby Orr scoring two goals and assisting on two others to shatter another NHL record. The two assists gave Orr 78 for the season, breaking the mark set by his teammate, Phil Esposito, last year.

But another Esposito, Phil's goateering brother, Tony, saved the family name by shutting out St. Louis 1-0 for the Black Hawks. It was the 13th shutout of the season for the rookie goalie and tied the record set by Toronto's Harry Lumley in 1953-54.

Elsewhere Sunday, Montreal nipped Pittsburgh 5-4 to move into a tie for third place in the East with idle Detroit, four points back of the Bruins and two in front of New York, which lost to Toronto 5-2. Philadelphia topped Oakland 3-2 to move into second place in the West, one point ahead of Pittsburgh.

In Saturday's action, Minnesota edged Boston 5-4, Chicago dropped Pittsburgh 5-3, Detroit whipped Los Angeles 4-1, Montreal blanked Philadelphia 2-0 and Toronto shut out St. Louis 2-0.

Orr's two goals gave him 30 for the season and an incredible

Bruins Win NCAA Title; Whip Dolphins In Finale

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Steve Patterson says UCLA wanted to prove it had a great team this season without Lew Alcindor. And he thinks the Bruins made their point.

"I think we established ourselves as No. 1," he said after UCLA defeated Jacksonville

80-69 Saturday. "We proved we were five guys who could play together."

"The season would have been a failure if we had lost the game. We had to win it."

Patterson, a 6-foot-9 junior from Santa Maria, Calif., said the Bruins have felt the pressure of playing in the shadow of 7-foot-2 Alcindor, who dominated college basketball from 1966-69 and led UCLA to three consecutive titles.

"It worked on the fellows," said Patterson, who played behind Alcindor, the past two seasons.

"You know, you come into a city to play and the newspaper headlines say: 'Alcindor - less UCLA.' When you see that every place you go, it works on you."

Coach John Wooden told newsmen all week long he did not think he had to prove himself over again without Alcindor, rumors to the contrary.

"If I had not won before having Lewis," he repeated often, "there might be some substance to the what they are saying. But I didn't think I had to prove anything."

Wooden has had 22 consecutive winning seasons at UCLA and won the national championship in 1964 and 1965, missing

Watt Captures Kiwanis Crown

IRON MOUNTAIN, Mich. (AP) — Adrian Watt of Duluth, Minn., picked up 183.7 points on jumps of 297 and 276 feet to win Sunday's Kiwanis Ski Club Invitational jumping meet on Pine Mountain at Iron Mountain, Mich.

Richard Pfiffner of Switzerland finished second with 153.3 points on leaps of 251 and 274 feet. Tom Dennison of St. Paul, Minn., finished third with 150.7 points.

In Saturday's Pine Mountain Invitational on the same hill, Pfiffner won and Watt finished second.

Distances were shortened Sunday by temperatures in the mid 40s which softened the snow on the takeoff hill, slowing the jumpers.

In the junior class, Tim Kingsfield of Racine, Wis., won with 143.0 points on jumps of 255 and 260 feet, while in Class B, Joe Smith of Minneapolis ended on top with 106.8 points on leaps of 231 and 225 feet.

Allan Chapman of Ishpeming, Mich., won veterans' competition with 81.5 points on 214 - and 198 - foot jumps.

Champion Coaches Plan Futures As Prep Cagers Close Campaign

FAST LANSING (AP) — For Detroit Pershing basketball coach Will Robinson the high school championship his team won over the weekend is the end of a road.

But he was to start on another trail almost immediately.

For Flint Holy Redeemer Coach Pat McDevitt the high school championship his team won is the end of a road.

But, temporarily at least, there is no other trail.

Robinson's unranked Doughboys pulled one of the biggest tournament upsets in years when they knocked off No. 1 Pontiac Central 86-81 in the championship game Saturday at Michigan House.

That was Robinson's last game as Pershing's coach and he said he was leaving today for his new job as head coach of Illinois State University.

Fifth-ranked Holy Redeemer nipped No. 2 Kingsley 62-60 with a basket at the buzzer to win the Class D title. But next year there will be no Flint Holy Redeemer, which soon becomes a victim of school consolidation, putting McDevitt out of a job. Meanwhile coach Lofgren Greene pondered retirement after his River Rouge super team dumped No. 1 Saginaw Carrollton 76-66 for the Panthers 10th Class B title.

The Class C crown went to Muskegon Christian 52-51.

Playoff Slated In Golf Event

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Dale Douglass hopes to line his pockets with 20,000 pieces of green to match the color of his wrist in an 18-hole playoff with Don January for the Greater Jacksonville Open golf title today.

Douglass, a regular on the pro golf tour seven years, has packed his three tournament victories in the past 10 months and his putter—a golfer's most valuable club—is serving him well.

As for the green wrist, he's a little reluctant to talk about it, but admits it was caused by a copper bracelet his parents gave him for his 34th birthday March 5.

"It is supposed to have something to do with arthritis and aches and pains," he admitted. "I don't know about that, but I had a sore wrist and played poorly after winning the Phoenix Open this winter."

The trouble started to clear up at Pensacola last week, where he tied for 29th place and collected $997.

January, 40-year-old veteran who restricts his tour appearances to 20 a year and hasn't been a winner since the 1968 Tournament of Champions, does not have a magic bracelet but does bear a trademark—his collar turned up in back.

"It's strictly because I get sunburned," he said.

January roared through the final 18 holes Sunday in 66 strokes—equalling the best round of the entire tourney over the tight fairways and rolling greens of the 6,943-yard Hidden Hills Country Club.

Douglass scored 69 on the final round, and they finished the four days of regular play at nine-under par 279.

"I feel bad about leaving. I have a loyalty to this state," Robinson said in the jubilant Pershing room after the game.

"But I don't think they've used me wisely," he added, indicating his disappointment at not having ever been offered the opportunity to coach in college or the pros.

He said he was happy the Illinois State job came along but "such an opportunity should have come a long time ago."

McDevitt said nonchalantly: "Well, I'm out of a job."

"I'll have to start looking for a job," he added.

After Rouge won, 51-year-old veteran coach Greene said, "I'm strongly thinking about retiring ... I'm going to give it a long think."

But he followed that up by saying, "I'd rather quit when we don't win. I hate to have my successor with nothing left to achieve."

Pershing was lifted to its championship with considerable help from sophomore Robert Hawkins and junior Calvin Harper. They tallied 28 and 24 points respectively in the final and scored 31 and 24 in the Doughboys' semifinal win over Midland.

Both were named to the Associated Press All-Tournament team while 5-foot-6 senior guard Phillip Paige, a great playmaker, was named to the second team.

Also picked for the first team were Rick Drewitz of Garden City West, Campy Russell of Pontiac Central, and Malcolm Moulton of River Rouge.

Drewitz scored 42 points in West's 84-79 semifinal loss to Pontiac Central.

Russell scored 31 points in Central's semi win and added 23 in the Pershing loss. He also dominated the boards, getting 24 rebounds Saturday.

With Moulton and 240-pounder Dwayne Johnson leading the way, Rouge fought off a Carrollton third quarter rally to win easily. During one five-minute span of the period Carrollton outscored the Panthers 16-2 to reduce a 16 point lead to a 54-53 third-quarter deficit.

Muskegon Christian coach Elmer Walcott is proud of his team's defensive play. But although the Warriors stopped St.

Ignace from scoring heavily they almost didn't score enough themselves.

The Saints came to within one point of winning but couldn't get off a final shot with six seconds left that could possibly have meant the title.

It was the fourth state championship for Muskegon Christian, which got fine tournament play from All-State candidate Tom Vanderlaan.

Bob Hooks isn't Holy Redeemer's big star, but the 6-1 senior guard was the big man both in the semis and finals.

In the Flyers' victory Friday over Wakefield he scored 10 of his 12 points in the final quarter as Holy Redeemer outscored Wakefield 23-8. Then it was his 20-foot jump shot at the buzzer that gave his team the dramatic victory over Kingsley.

Kingsley led the entire game until the final three minutes.

Next year's championship games will be played a week after the semis under a new format. All the finals will be played at the University of Michigan for the first time, then every other year afterwards will return to Michigan State. The semis will stay at MSU.

The Class C and D semifinal sites will be determined after next year's quarterfinal round.

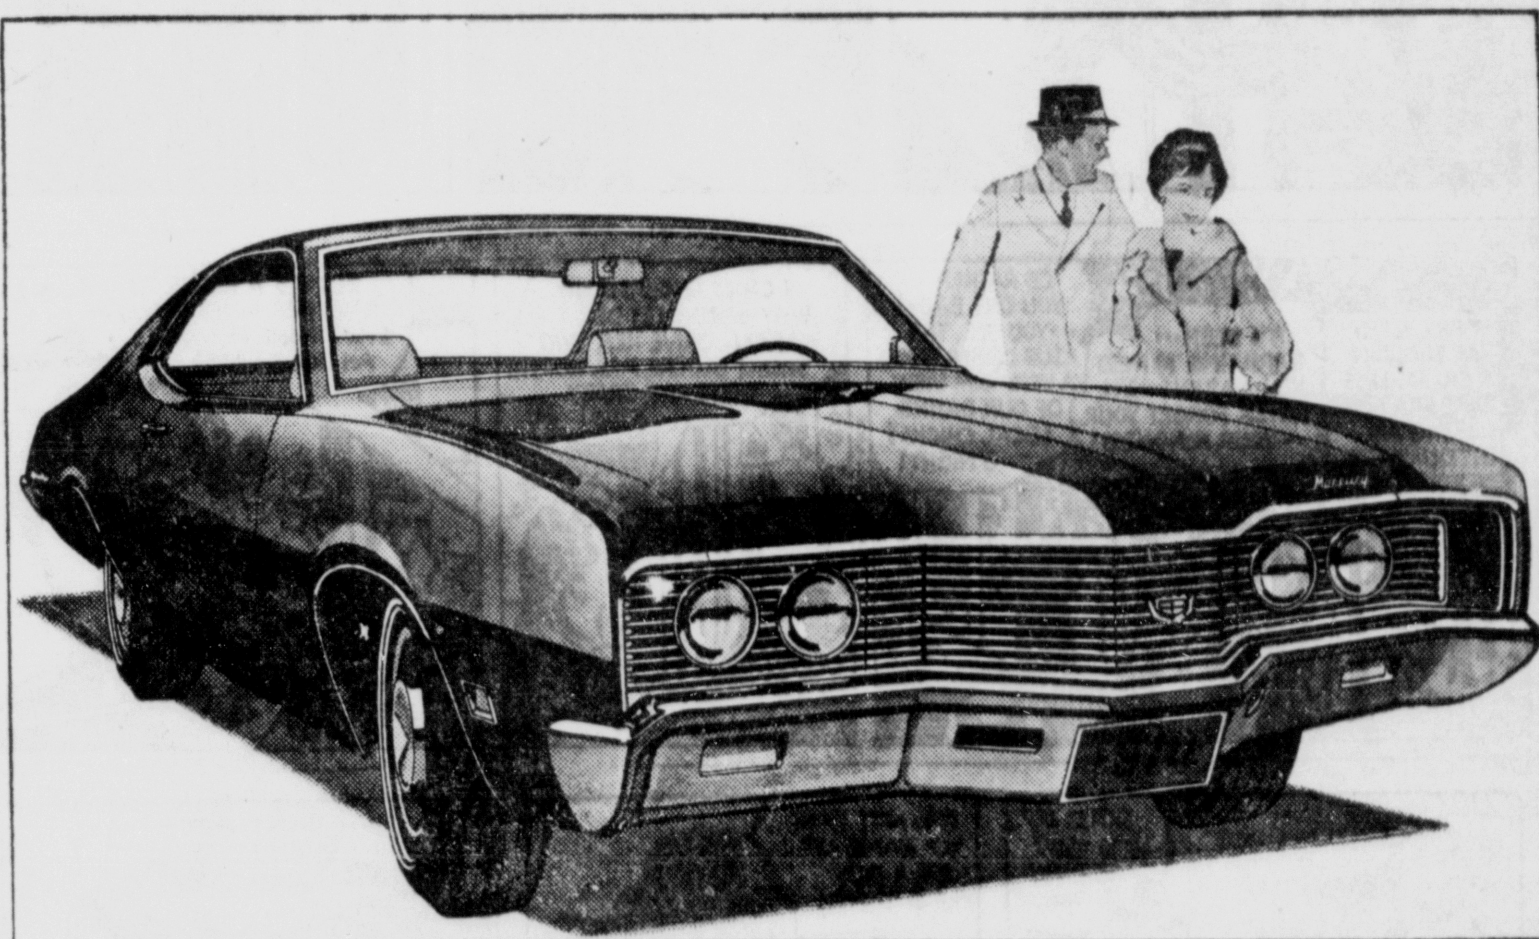

Scoring Record Set By Haywood

DENVER (AP) — Rookie Spencer Haywood shattered the American Basketball Association's scoring record with a 37-point effort Saturday night as the Denver Rockets hammered the Carolina Cougars, 128-105 to maintain their lead in the Western Division.

Haywood was held to just 11 points in the first half as the Rockets took a 57-45 intermission lead, but blew the game wide open in the third with 20 points. Denver outscored the Cougars 8-1 in the closing minutes of that period, mostly on Haywood's spurge.

The former University of Detroit star went into the game with 2,132 points, one shy of the mark set last year by teammate Larry Jones.

Jones contributed 14 points to the Rocket cause, and Byron Beck scored 19. Bob Verga headed the Cougars with 26.

There's No Magical Quick Fix For Nation's Pollution Problem

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
Of The Associated Press

The galloping popular campaign to clean up the nation's polluted environment won't witness some magical quick fix. And that is worrying some experts in pollution control.

They are concerned that enthusiasm will fade when the drive to clean up air, water and land runs into inevitable practical realities, even if given all the good will in the world to do the job.

Deflation Of Pressure

Disappointment and fading interest could deflate the pressure to do what is really required—a continuing commitment and motivation to raise the money, to pass and enforce the laws, to develop technology and to do all the work first to halt and then correct man-made insults to the environment. And then to keep improving antipollution controls as population expands.

As one reality, take a river basin which is being polluted by raw sewage from a number of towns.

By popular demand, even law, all towns are asked to halt their pollution, right now. People along other rivers make similar demand.

Not Enough Engineers

But would there be enough engineers to make the essential surveys, then to plan and design the sewage treatment plants, or would there be enough skilled construction firms—given contracts for the lowest bids—to build all the plants for all the towns and cities at the same time?

The point is raised by Reinhold W. Thieme, a deputy assistant secretary of the Interior, not in terms of suggesting any slowdown, but merely to point out that some cities might have to wait their turn to complete the clean-up of the entire river.

No Instant Paradise

Another caution against expecting instant paradise comes from a distinguished leader in efforts to save man's environment, Dr. Rene Dubos of Rockefeller University, New York City. He says much basic knowledge is lacking concerning some actions to take.

While a river of dollars will be needed to stop pollution, "even if we had limitless resources we could not formulate really effective control programs because we know so little about the origin, nature and effects of most air pollutants," Dr. Dubos writes in Psychology Today.

Seventy per cent of the solid particles contaminating urban air have not been identified, and "no one really knows at present which of the air pollutants are most dangerous and where priority should be placed in control measures."

Ignorance Exists

Even greater ignorance exists concerning chemical pollutants in water supplies, and about which ones may be harmful to health, he adds.

But it is essential that as a society Americans commit themselves to solving problems of pollution "not because we are threatened with extinction but because, if we do not understand what the environment is doing to us, something worse than extinction will take place—a progressive degradation of the quality of human life," Dr. Dubos declares.

Controls Will Rise

Specialists such as Thieme and Dubos are not suggesting any excuses for not going ahead immediately with a mammoth attack against pollution, but to give perspective that the struggle will take time, and will involve more than the most obvious sources of pollution, such as sewage, chemicals pouring into the air and water, and noxious fumes from auto exhausts.

Standards of control will have to rise with population growth, Thieme points out.

Suppose, he explains, that a city is treating its sewage so that 95 per cent of what is discharged into a river or lake is safe enough not to harm the quality of the water—at this time. If the city's population doubles, or more, then the 5 per cent of contaminated material could, by sheer volume, become a damaging amount.

Needs Important

Charles C. Johnson, administrator, and Dr. John J. Hanlon, deputy administrator of the Environmental Health Service, Rockville, Md., stress the importance of "channeling our energies and concerns into the right priority of needs."

While it is very important to protect wildlife and natural resources and to preserve recreational areas, they give the highest priority to cleaning up air and water to protect human health. And Johnson adds, in this respect: "What is good for man is good for animals, too."

The outlook is promising for truly effective control in a few years time of pollutants from automobile exhausts, but "the picture for control of pollutants from stationary sources is not so rosy," says Leighton A. Price of the Environmental Health Service.

Major Problems Noted

Major problems are sulfur oxides and solid particles of matter coming from power plants, factories, incinerators and burning of coal, but "you just can't call on engineers now and say, 'Control my sulfur.' Some processes for doing this look good, but haven't been tested on a large scale yet. There's nothing on the shelf to do it with."

The dimensions of the problem of disposing of solid wastes are just becoming apparent to the public, says Richard D. Vaughan, director of the Bureau of Solid Waste Management of the Environmental Health Service.

What, for example, is to be done with seven million old automobiles abandoned every year? Only 10 per cent now are scrapped and the metal reused; the rest are eyesores, occupying more and more land.

Lot Of Questions

Questions abound. Who should pay to have them transported for use as scrap—taxpayer, auto owner, auto maker? Should steel mills be required to use a certain percentage of scrap in making new steel—suppose their furnaces are not designed for this, who should foot that bill?

The national bill for collecting, transporting and disposing of solid wastes—paper, plastics, cans, bottles, broken furniture, whatever—is $4½ billion a year now, Vaughan says.

"Collection methods, while archaic, aren't too bad, but disposal surely is bad. Mostly the stuff is thrown into dumps. Only about 6 per cent goes into sanitary land-fills, and 8 to 10 per cent is incinerated, but only about one-quarter of the incinerators have adequate air pollution controls."

Research is needed to create more efficient incinerators and better land-fill techniques and devices, he says.

"But if we put all our eggs into one technological basket, we are bound to lose. The amount of our solid waste is doubling every 10 years, and that's a conservative estimate. One reason is more people. The other is that what we discard, as individuals, is increasing at an even faster rate than doubling every 10 years."

One great goal has to be to learn how to recycle more products, to use the same materials over and over again, and somehow to pay for doing this, Vaughan says.

The problem exists only with man's material things. Nature has always recycled all living things, after they die.

Substitute For Scalpel Offered

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A University of Oregon scientist has offered a controversial substitute for the scalpel in opening a passage through clogged arteries in the leg.

Dr. Charles T. Dotter says he has developed a technique in which a flexible, snake-like device is inserted into a blood vessel through a small incision in the thigh to clear out an artery.

"A technology capable of digging holes in the moon by remote control," Dotter said, "is also capable of achieving surgical objectives within the intact body."

Dotter, chairman of the Oregon Medical School's Department of Diagnostic Radiology, argued that surgeons unwilling to change their ways have blocked acceptance of his technique.

The report of the work was given at a symposium for science writers held by the American Cancer Society.

Dr. Wendell M. Stanley of the University of California at Berkeley, a session chairman, noted that the technique was controversial. He said that if it proves valid it will be accepted; if not, "it will pass along like other things in the past."

The Oregon radiologist said he has had perhaps 80 per cent success with 225 patients in clearing partially blocked leg arteries.

Its use on completely blocked arteries has been less successful, he said.

The medical tool, called a catheter, clears an opening in fatty obstruction much like a nail will leave a hole in wood after it is removed, Dotter said Friday.

"Although otherwise knowledgeable surgeons have tended to dismiss the technique as unreliable, risky or 'too good to be true,'" he argued, "we and others who have used it, and it is safer, swifter and easier on both the patient and his pocketbook."

'Bird-Dog' Title Seen If Weiner Goes Astray

By JACQUELINE KORONA

LANSING (AP) — Chicken in hot dogs could taste great, cost less and give Michigan's poultry industry another marketplace for its product.

It also could put the State Agriculture Department in a bind if the Legislature acts only on the chicken bill—and not a pending measure to provide for inspection of meat processing plants.

15 Per Cent Bird

So went testimony at a recent hearing on a proposal to allow up to 15 per cent chicken, turkey and duck meat—including a normal amount of "clean, edible skin"—to be mixed with other ingredients in some ground meat products.

The Senate Agriculture Committee is expected to act before week's end on the bill sponsored by Sen. Gary Byker, R-Hudsonville. Agriculture Chairman Alvin Degrow, R-Pigeon, cited the overwhelming testimony in favor of the bill and indicated it probably would be reported for floor action.

Arguments Called Moot

At the jammed committee hearing, one person testified against the bill, but others called the arguments "moot."

"Remember the old slab bacon—with rough bristles in it?" prodded Emil Salay of Flint president of the Michigan Sausage Manufacturers Association. "We don't believe all the pinfeathers can be gotten out of the chicken skin."

Others rebutted Salay's arguments, pointing out that people eat—and savor—the skin of fried chicken and they don't chop into pinfeathers.

Backs Reinspection

Salay argued also that without the so-called "Reinspection Bill" now pending in legislative committee, the state would have no way to check on the actual amount of poultry products contained in hot dogs.

Without the in-plant inspection authorized by the legislation, some "unscrupulous manufacturers" might use more than the allowable amount of chicken and gain a price advantage on competitors, he said.

Ron Leach, acting chief of the State Food Inspection Division, said the Agriculture Department had no specific arguments against the bill, but added comments similar to Salay's about reinspection.

Determination Hard

Without the passage of the reinspection legislation, the 15 per cent limitation could not be enforced, the department says,

"since laboratory tests cannot accurately determine the per cent of poultry meat included."

Sen. Charles O. Zoller, R-Benton Harbor, rebutted both Salay's arguments, saying the skin could be cleaned and "reinspection is coming, whether it's at the state or federal level."

Other testimony went like this: "Marvin Dewitt of Zeeland, president of the Michigan Allied Poultry Industry, said poultry is 'one of the best meats for use. It's high in protein and low in fat.'"

Proposal Endorsed

—Al Almy, a representative of the Michigan Farm Bureau, said farmers across the state had endorsed the proposal at the organization's 50th annual delegate convention last year.

—Dr. Howard Zindel, chairman of the Michigan State University Poultry Science Department and a prime force behind creation of the "bird-dog," a white meat-red meat hot dog made from poultry and other products, said testing panels over the country had tried the combination product and "even trained sausage people can't tell the difference."

—Carl Hoyt, an MSU district extension marketing agent, said current Michigan rules, which do not allow chicken combined with beef and pork "set up a trade barrier." Passage of the bill, he added, might lower the price of hot dogs 2-3 cents a package.

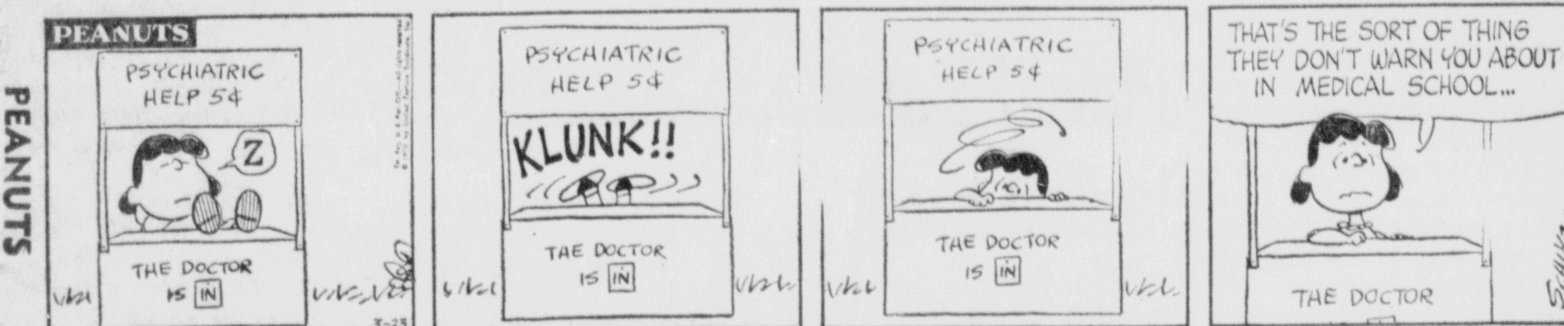

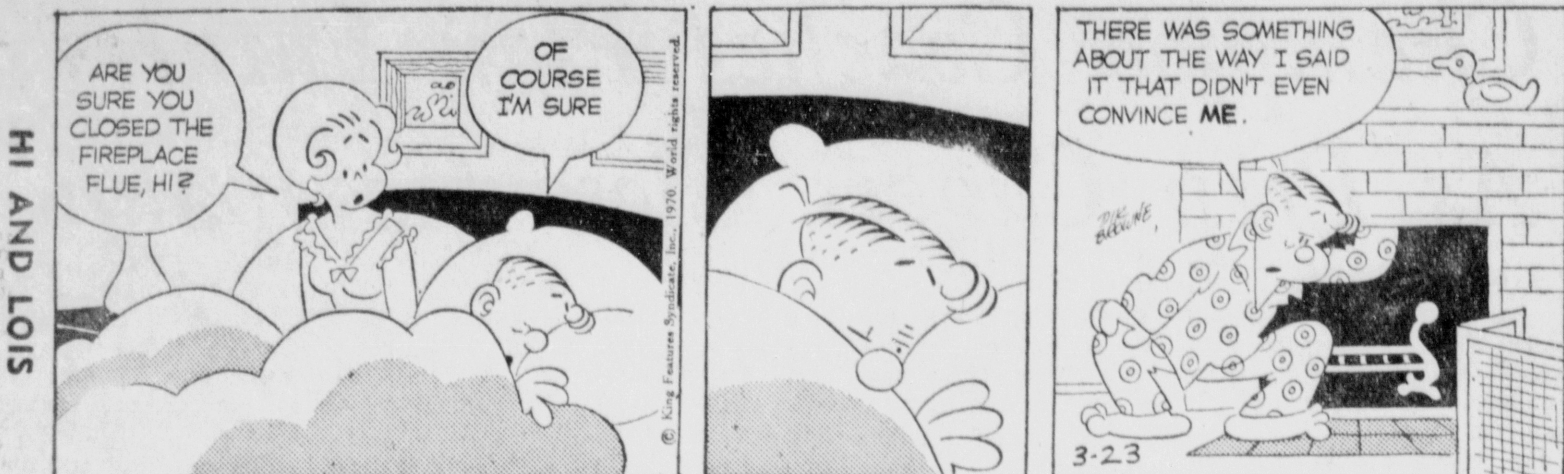

Also pointed out during testimony was the fact that allowing chicken, turkey and duck meat would put Michigan more in line with federal standards for ground meat products.

Degrow lamented: "It seems like a real shame to waste a duck in a hot dog."

Appointment

LANSING (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has appointed former Sen. John Stahlin of Belding to the Mackinac Island State Park Commission. Stahlin serves as special assistant for political affairs to the governor. He succeeds Michael Hegarty of Detroit for the remainder of a term expiring April 12, 1971. Hegarty recently was appointed to the Michigan Employment Security Appeal Board. Stahlin served in the State Senate from 1958 through 1960.

Gladstone Lions OK Pram Donation

The Gladstone Lions unanimously voted to donate a pram to be used in the city recreational program at a recent meeting.

The speaker for the evening was Joe Mosier of Rapid River, trustee of the Upper Peninsula Game Preservation Association. He attended the meeting along with Harvey Potvin, President of the Association. They explained that the purpose of the association was to safeguard wildlife. One of the projects that they are currently involved in is to determine if the dead coho in the Haymeadow Creek or in the Whitefish River are dangerously polluting these bodies of water.

Water samples have been sent to laboratories to have virus tests, bacteria count, dissolved oxygen content and checked for fungus growth. The results of these tests will not be known until the end of the month.

Program chairman was James Stammer.

Guests attending the meeting included Bob Tracy from MacKinnon City and Carl Ahlin, member of Bark River Lions Club, Don Ritzhaupt and Lowell Kollmann. A new member, Capt. Robert Hartman was inducted into the club.

Briefly Told

The American Legion Auxiliary will hold a regular meeting at the Legion Hall at 8 p.m. Members are reminded that 1970 dues are payable at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Adams, Portland, Mich., have announced the adoption of a son, Todd Andrew, who was born Feb. 12. The mother is the former Nancy Hite, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hite, of Gladstone.

Demo Party Plans Still Under Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Democratic party official says many reforms made or under way in state organizations fall short of a national party commission's recommendations for making presidential convention delegate selections more responsive to the rank-and-file.

Robert Nelson, staff director of the commission, headed by the South Dakota Sen. George S. McGovern, says 21 state parties have developed their own reforms and reform groups are at work in 20 others.

But, he added, many of these reforms do not meet the standards set by the McGovern commission, created by the 1968 Democratic National Convention in a move to make party procedures more democratic.

The most controversial of the recommendations are proposals permitting 18-year-olds to participate in party affairs and requiring representation of women and young people in future delegations in general proportion to their share of the population.

— "General Motors' failure performance was distinctive: 68 per cent of the GM cars surveyed failed for either carbon monoxide or hydrocarbon at an average of 12,000 miles . . ."

In a parenthetical note, Nader said "the oft-repeated deception by auto company representatives that their 1970 models show a reduction of hydrocarbon emissions of 80 per cent and a carbon monoxide decline of about 70 per cent over the 1961 models must be refuted by governmental officials who have this information regarding the degradation of performance after a few thousand miles . . ."

Nader Aiming Guns At Auto Pollution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader said Sunday air pollution standards for automobiles are being widely violated and asked a special inquiry by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

In a letter to Secretary Robert H. Finch, Nader said the National Air Pollution Control Administration, a unit in HEW, long has been aware of widespread violations but, he asserted:

— "There has been no enforcement action taken at any time in the many months in which NAPCA officials have been privately aware of this situation."

Claiming that 55 to 60 per cent of the nation's air pollution comes from automobiles, Nader wrote that 80 per cent of production line vehicles do not meet the emission-control standards that their prototypes did when tested by NAPCA for emission of hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide.

He called on Finch to name a special board of inquiry directly responsible to the secretary to investigate areas which Nader described thus:

Salmon Report:

First Cohos Come To The Haymeadow

By CLIFF LONG
District DNR Fish Biologist
(Second In A Series)

Coho introductions were about to become a reality. Plans, already partially formulated for monitoring, evaluating and controlling the program had to be completed and implemented. There were still questions which needed answers.

If the initial plant was made at the proper time, most of them would move out of the stream to the Bay and Lake Michigan before they could appreciably affect the stream environment and the native fish populations. The first adult run would occur in the fall of 1969. If they reproduced successfully and the new year class of coho should compete with or prey upon the native fishes, or if the adults inhibited reproduction of native species through competition for spawning facilities, the effects should be apparent in the summer of 1970.

To provide a means for detecting and measuring any such effects, 17 key stations scattered throughout the watershed were selected.

Documentations

Fish populations and habitat conditions were documented at each of them in the summers of 1967, 1968 and 1969. Studies will be duplicated at each in 1970 and each year thereafter for as long as is necessary.

Before and after comparisons will be made and if any undesirable changes begin to occur, they will be detected and the necessary corrective measures will be applied.

Site Selected

The actual planting site had to meet certain specifications. It had to be readily accessible to planting trucks. It had to be on a stream possessing characteristics suitable for salmonid species. It had to be small enough so the size of adult runs could be accurately gauged via fish collections and observations and there had to be suitable locations for the installation of barrier and harvest weirs to further evaluate and control the runs.

The Haymeadow Creek most nearly met these specifications. Two days after the 1968 plant of 100,000 cohos was made, the first ones were picked up near Garth Point in nets placed there to monitor migrations. Downstream movement increased during the next few days and most of them moved out of the stream as anticipated.

However, they did not all cooperate. Some remained in the Haymeadow at least thru May, some remained in the Whitefish River well into June and the first problem began to develop.

Hooked Salmon

Trout fishermen fishing those waters reported hooking many small cohos and complained of salmon taking baits and lures before they could get to the larger trout. Though this can be aggravating, it is not considered a serious problem. Most trout fishermen have had the same thing happen with creek chubs on many of the streams they have fished.

If we would have large fish we must first have small ones and the return of fish in the 10 to 12 pound class should be adequate compensation for this inconvenience.

Nor did their presence in those waters at that time represent serious competition with native species for the available food. Cohos at this stage tend to move into larger waters where food is abundant. The fact that they remained in the stream indicates that there was a sufficiency of food organisms there.

Out Of Stream

By midsummer, all had moved out of the stream and apparently out of the Bay into Lake Michigan. A few returned as "jacks" in the fall of 1968, but this run was not of sufficient magnitude to create a fishery and no problems were associated with it. The remainder stayed in Lake Michigan feeding largely upon alewives thus contributing to the control of that problem species.

Smoking On Rise, Despite Warning, Professor Says

CLEMSON, S.C. (AP) — George von Tunget, a Clemson University agricultural economist, believes the consumption of cigarettes in the United States is increasing despite the vigorous antismoking campaign.

Prof. von Tunget said in an interview recently. "We apparently have reached that level where all of those persons who are going to quit smoking have quit. And, with the steady growth of population, the consumption of cigarettes will be on an upward trend."

Von Tunget said he based his predictions on recent statistics, "all indicating that the recent downward trend in smoking has reached a leveling-off point, and the move now will be upward."

Careers Open

LANSING (AP) — The state Department of Natural Resources reports young men interested in careers as conservation officers have until March 30 to apply for competitive examinations to be held on May 2. Applications can be made through the State Department of Civil Service. Men in the 21 through 30 age bracket are eligible. A high school education is required.

Priests' Exodus Causing Concern

LONDON (AP) — The number of Roman Catholic priests leaving the ministry is posing a pastoral problem for bishops and religious superiors, says a confidential report circulated to Church leaders all over the world.

The report, from an international Church research center in Western Europe, says the attitude of the Catholic community is far from unanimous in the way it handles the issue.

Reports Vary
"According to region, it can still today vary from unqualified condemnation to acquiescence, passing through all the stages of understanding," the report said. "The subject is still, in the majority of countries, one of those not discussed except by hints on the level of the hierarchies. The result is that the most fantastic information is circulating among ecclesiastics and laymen, all tending, in our experience, in the direction of a grave exaggeration of the number of leavers."

Raps False Rumors
The report suggested it might be better to publish the true figures than to allow "false rumors, generally exaggerated and alarmist" to spread without the possibility of denial.

Only in Holland have complete figures been published. Out of the country's 8,000 priests, 30 left the ministry in 1965, 60 in 1966, 115 in 1967, and 400 in the two years since. At the same time the number of priests dying has exceeded the number of new priests ordained. The present rate of 145 ordinands a year is running at about half what it was 10 years ago.

The Dutch Pastoral Council has voted overwhelmingly that permanent celibacy should no longer be a condition of ordination.

Support Council
Bishops supported the council, but Pope Paul VI has ruled that to abandon celibacy would mean "a lowering of the authentic concept of the priesthood."

"Nowadays," the report remarked, "experience is showing that the priests leave at any age, with a propensity to leave in the first five years following ordination. Formerly, it was rare for any to leave after 40 years of age."

Those leaving occupy the most varied positions in the Church, the report said, although professors at seminaries and student chaplains tend to leave more frequently than parish priests.

Aid Centers Set Up
Most try to go into education or the social services, "thus remaining in the preoccupations

Automobile Train Newest GM Idea

DETROIT (AP) — An automobile train is en route to California in an effort, designed to save General Motors Corp. at least one day of travel time in delivering new cars and parts to West Coast dealers and assembly plants.

The 100 freight cars are loaded exclusively with GM products and the idea is to provide a virtual nonstop trip for the cars and parts. It left Friday night from a freight yard at Markham, Ill. after the components of the train was assembled from various plants in Michigan. It is scheduled to arrive in California on Monday.

"By operating the train as a single unit, we will achieve faster delivery of GM automobiles to West Coast customers," said Milford Barron, executive
